Tate Murder Trial Opens

Manson Sought Racial War, State Declares

LOS ANGELES (AP) — With a Beatles song spinning in his mind, Charles M. Manson ordered the murders of actress Sharon Tate and six others in hopes of igniting a black-white war, the state says.

To Manson, "Helter Skelter," the title of one of the Beatles' songs, meant the black man rising up against the white establishment and murdering the entire white race, Deputy Dist. Atty. Vincent Bugliosi said in an opening statement Friday at the trial of the hippie-type "family" leader and three followers on charges of conspiracy to commit murder.

He said Manson believed the race war would wipe out all whites except Manson and his clan who "intended to escape from Helter Skelter by going to the desert."

Bugliosi described Manson as "an avid follower of the Beatles" and said the shaggy-haired ex-convict believed the British quartet was "speaking to him across the ocean."

Manson interpreted their songs as supporting his philosophies and has "a fanatical obsession with 'Helter Skelter,'" the prosecutor said. The lyrics of the song do not mention race war.

"Helter Skelter" was scrawled in blood on a wall at the home of two of the victims along with "Rise" and "Death to Pigs," the words "Pigs" was written in blood at the Tate home.

Bugliosi said the scrawlings and other evidence were aimed at "making it look like the black people had murdered the five

Link Britisher To Onassis Kidnap 'Plot'

LONDON (AP) — A British engineer who says he has "connections in Greece" was ordered held without bail today on charges of demanding $3.35 million in exchange for settling a plot to kidnap Aristotle Onassis and his wife, the former Jacqueline Kennedy.

Police said John Humphreys, 58, made several calls to insurance companies and other London firms telling of a kidnap plot. They said he claimed he had "connections in Greece."

"He says there was a plan to kidnap Onassis and Jackie but if his ransom money was paid the plan would be called off," police said without elaboration.

Humphreys was arrested after an insurance company called police. He is charged with making unwarranted statements with menaces, police said.

Sentry Slugged, Marine Corps Weapons Stolen

CAMP PENDLETON, Calif. (AP) — Three or four persons broke into a Marine Corps armory here late Friday night, clubbed a sentry unconscious and made off with nine rifles, a grenade launcher and a .45-caliber pistol, a military spokesman said.

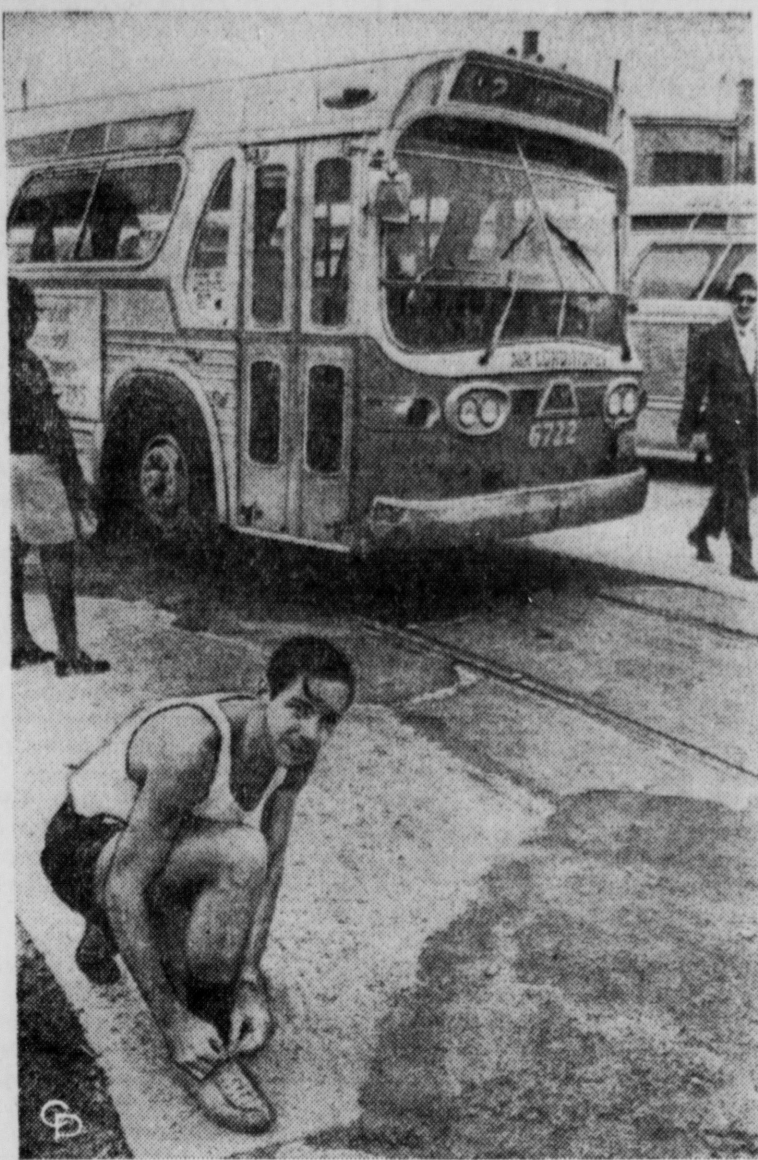

Lt. Col. Ed Schultze said marine shore patrolmen and FBI agents immediately began a barracks-to-barracks search for the men and weapons. The rifles were M16s. All cars leaving the base were also stopped and searched, he said.

Schultze said the intruders were believed to be Marines. He said the guard called to his superiors after being unconscious for about five minutes.

He said the guard, unidentified, was treated and released at the base hospital.

Mondale Admits Pessimism In Migrant Worker Expose

WASHINGTON (AP) — After three days of testimony describing deplorable living and working conditions of migrant workers, Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., said, "If history is a guide, we won't do much about them."

The Minnesota Democrat, chairman of a Senate migratory labor subcommittee, said, "Our hearings have established beyond doubt the utterly deplorable condition of the migrant farm worker. Now, the question is whether the country is going to do anything about it."

But, he said, "We have been through this before. The nation was outraged and then forgot it."

He said he was pessimistic about passage of legislation to help migrant workers because they "are without political and economic power and without enough friends to get the legislation needed for a decent life."

Mondale made the statement Friday after the Coca-Cola Co. outlined a program to improve the salary, fringe benefits and housing for its migrant workers employed by the Minute Maid Co., a subsidiary.

Minute Maid is one of the largest orange juice processors, with 300 full-time and 1,000 seasonal migrant workers in its Florida orange groves.

J. Paul Austin, Coca Cola president, said he hopes to transform the migratory work force into a stable, year-round group with the same benefits given other Coca Cola employees.

Utility Chief Bomb Victim

Continental Phone President Slain

CLAYTON, Mo. (AP) — Police seek a motive in the slaying of Phillip J. Lucier, 49, president of Continental Telephone Co., the third largest independent telephone firm in the nation.

Lucier, father of 11, was killed Friday when a bomb placed under the driver's seat of his car exploded as he turned on the ignition.

James L. Robb and James V. Napier, vice presidents of the firm, were standing by the car waiting for Lucier to back out of a parking space after a lunch appointment. Neither was hurt.

"It must be a crackpot," said Robb, in charge of operations for the company, adding that Lucier had "no personal enemies."

Lucier, who lived in St. Louis, began as president of the small firm based in the suburb of Clayton in 1961. Since then it has acquired more than 600 independent telephone companies in the United States and several foreign countries, and its assets have grown from $26 million to more than $1 billion.

With siren blaring and lights flashing, the 46-year-old Charleston, W. Va., man and his 2-year-old son went on a wild 15-minute ride through this community of 14,000 as seven police cars followed in hot pursuit.

He finally drove the car back to the fire station and surrendered to police. He was charged with operating a vehicle without the consent of the owner.

Police said Marsh had tried unsuccessfully to start up a fire truck before taking the chief's car.

Gov. Maddox Hurt In Auto Accident

SAVANNAH, Ga. (AP) — Gov. Lester Maddox suffered minor injuries Friday when the state patrol car taking him to the Savannah airport missed a curve in a rainstorm and struck a concrete abutment.

A spokesman for the governor said his shoulder and elbow were bruised. His security aide, Lt. Ray Newman, and the troop carrier driving the car also suffered minor injuries.

Soviets Test Atom Devices

UPPSALA, Sweden (AP) — The Uppsala Seismological Institute reported today that it has recorded two Soviet underground nuclear tests during the past four days near Semipalatinsk in Siberia, some 200 miles from the border of Sinkiang province, northwest China.

Prof. Marcus Baath, head of the institute, said the first blast occurred at 8:03 p.m. EDT Monday and the second at 8:57 p.m. EDT Thursday. The first explosion had a magnitude of 6.1 on the Richter scale—a rather strong intensity—and the second had a magnitude of 5.6.

The last test of the same kind occurred on June 28 and had a Richter scale reading 6.2, Baath said.

Heath Appoints Exchequer Boss

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Edward Heath today named his campaign manager, Anthony Barber, as Britain's new chancellor of the exchequer.

Barber, 50, succeeds Iain Macleod, who died of a heart attack Monday after 30 days in charge of the nation's treasury.

Barber is a lawyer and World War II fighter pilot who until his promotion was in charge of negotiating Britain's bid to join the European Common Market.

Patrol Report On KSU Draws No Conclusions

Investigators Take No Stand On Guard Role

WARREN, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Highway Patrol's final report on the shooting deaths of four students at Kent State University during a confrontation with the Ohio National Guard takes no stand on the guard's action, says the officer in charge of the investigation.

Lt. Donald D. Greenlee, assistant commander of the Patrol's Warren district, said Friday that he and two other officers delivered a copy of the patrol's report earlier this week to Portage County Prosecutor Ronald J. Kane and discussed the report with him.

Kent State is in Portage County. The shootings at the campus took place May 4 after the Ohio National Guard was called out to quell a disturbance.

Greenlee said the report ran several volumes, consisting of several thousand pages and many photographs.

"We drew no conclusions," Greenlee said. "That is the responsibility of the grand jury."

Greenlee refused to comment on a reported FBI study that, according to the Akron Beacon Journal, said the deaths of the students were not necessary and the U.S. Justice Department told Ohio officials that six guardsmen possibly could be charged in the incident.

The commander of the Ohio National Guard, Adj. Gen. Sylvester T. Del Corso, said Friday that the reported FBI findings were "just unbelievable."

"At least the conclusions as stated in the paper by the reporter are just unbelievable... that there were no troops injured, that no stones were thrown and there was a question of whether there was even a riot," he said.

The Beacon Journal said its information came from a 10-page summary of an FBI report on the incident. The summary said there was no hail of rocks thrown by demonstrators and that no guardsmen were hurt.

The incident took place when some 100 guardsmen became surrounded at Kent by some 200 demonstrators, who guardsmen claimed pelted them with rocks and refused to disperse when tear gas was fired at them.

Del Corso reiterated that every man in the 100-man unit had been injured by thrown objects. He said two had teeth knocked out and others required hospital examinations.

"The FBI said Friday that it did not draw any conclusions. Asked if the statement was a denial of the Beacon Journal story, a spokesman for the Cleveland office of the FBI said: "Our statement is merely a position statement that says the FBI does not draw conclusions."

The newspaper said the 10-page summary story was based on what was signed by Jerris Leonard, head of the Justice Department's Civil Rights Division.

Kane called the release of a story about the document "totally irresponsible."

half Friday with Mrs. Meir. Foreign Minister Abba Eban and some of Mrs. Meir's top political advisors. A government statement said only that "major issues were discussed," but Egypt's acceptance of the U.S. proposals undoubtedly was the main matter discussed.

In Cairo, Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser said his acceptance of the proposals was a tactic to keep Israel from obtaining additional arms.

He told members of Egypt's only political party Friday that Israel had hoped the Arabs would reject the proposals so that it would have justification for demanding more arms from the United States.

Instead, he said, "we have accepted the proposals in order not to give Israel reasons or motives to demand additional arms."

Governor Hits Nixon 'Politics'

FARGO, N.D. (AP) — North Dakota Gov. William L. Guy has accused President Nixon's staff of attempting to turn a nonpolitical meeting with five Midwestern governors into a partisan Republican gathering.

Guy was the only Democrat among the governors who met in Fargo with the President to discuss the problems of rural America.

Republicans denied Guy's allegations Friday.

Presidential press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said later in

Salt Lake City, "The impression I got was that everyone who attended... thought the meeting was nonpartisan and extremely valuable."

Guy termed the official meeting "excellent" but he said Nixon aides had attempted to block his participation in the visit to Fargo, had slighted Sen. Quentin Burdick, D-N.D., by not inviting him and had slighted the governor's wife.

Guy said he was told the White House would handle announcement of the meeting.

"Two hours later," said the four-term governor, "the announcement was made jointly by Congressmen Kleppe and Andrews." Rep. Thomas Kleppe and Mark Andrews are North Dakota Republicans. Kleppe is challenging Burdick for the Senate seat.

Burdick "was treated like an outsider" while the GOP congressmen accompanied the President, Guy told a news conference.

"My wife received her first invitation to the event about 9:30 last night," he said. "She was invited to the style show for Mrs. Nixon but was specifically told not to intrude into any other activities."

Guy also said: "I was at first told that I wouldn't be permitted to greet the President, that Republican party officials would do that. But I overruled the White House aides on that one."

One man was grazed on the head; the others suffered bullet wounds in the arms and hands.

Minutes after the shooting, police arrested Harry Mitchell Camp, 29, of suburban Riverdale and charged him with six counts of aggravated assault and with carrying a pistol without a license.

Police said that when they arrested Camp eight blocks from the scene in the nearly deserted Union Station he was holding a pistol with six spent cartridges in it.

Police said they could establish no motive for the shootings. "As far as we can tell," said one detective, "he just started blazing away."

All of those shot were either waiting for parking garage attendants to bring their cars or were passing by on the sidewalk.

Lull Reported On Cambodian Battle Fronts

SAIGON (AP) — Allied forces claimed killing 119 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops in stepped-up fighting in South Vietnam, but a lull was reported today on Cambodian battle fronts.

Two American and two South Vietnamese soldiers were killed and nine Americans and 16 Vietnamese were wounded Friday and today in six widely scattered clashes ranging from South Vietnam's northern Mekong Delta to the central coastal plain.

U.S. Air Force B52 bombers launched heavy raids across the Mekong Delta and in the far northern part of South Vietnam. Thirty of the big Stratofortresses dropped 900 tons of bombs on suspected North Vietnamese installations. Some struck positions 11 miles south of Fire Base Ripcord near the A Shau valley along the Laos frontier.

The firebase, 25 miles west of Hue, was abandoned Thursday under heavy North Vietnamese fire.

Two American helicopters were shot down Friday. The shooting down of one, on the central coastal plain northwest of An Khe, triggered a five-hour battle in which 39 Viet Cong were reported killed and six Americans wounded. Headquarters said there were no casualties in the crash and that the crew was rescued.

The other helicopter was shot down near the scene of fighting in the Mekong Delta. One crewman was reported killed and another wounded.

U.S. air cavalrymen who returned to Vietnam two weeks ago after two months of operations in Cambodia reported killing 24 North Vietnamese soldiers while searching for munitions caches in War Zone D, 48 miles northeast of Saigon. One U.S. soldier was killed.

South Vietnamese troops killed 24 enemy soldiers in two other clashes, one in the delta 85 miles southwest of Saigon and the other in Tay Ninh Province 70 miles northwest of Saigon. Government casualties were listed as one killed and 16 wounded.

Tate Murder Trial Opens

Manson Sought Racial War, State Declares

LOS ANGELES (AP) — With a Beatles song spinning in his mind, Charles M. Manson ordered the murders of actress Sharon Tate and six others in hopes of igniting a black-white war, the state says.

To Manson, "Helter Skelter," the title of one of the Beatles' songs, meant the black man rising up against the white establishment and murdering the entire white race. Deputy Dist. Atty. Vincent Bugliosi said in an opening statement Friday at the trial of the hippie-type "family" leader and three followers on charges of conspiracy to commit murder.

He said Manson believed the race war would wipe out all whites except Manson and his clan who "intended to escape from Helter Skelter by going to the desert."

Bugliosi described Manson as "an avid follower of the Beatles" and said the shaggy-haired ex-convict believed the British quartet was "speaking to him across the ocean."

Manson interpreted their songs as supporting his philosophies and has "a fanatical obsession with 'Helter Skelter,'" the prosecutor said. The lyrics of the song do not mention race war.

"Helter Skelter" was scrawled in blood on a wall at the home of two of the victims along with "Rise" and "Death to Pigs," the words "Pigs" was written in blood at the Tate home.

Bugliosi said the scrawlings and other evidence were aimed at "making it look like the black people had murdered the five Tate victims and Mr. and Mrs. (Leno) La Bianca, thereby causing the white community to turn against the black man and ultimately lead to a civil war... a war Manson foresaw the black man winning."

The prosecutor said Manson believed the black-white war would be started spontaneously by blacks but "got impatient" and told his clan: "I'm going to show blackie how to do it." Then, said Bugliosi, he ordered the murders.

Manson's vision of the war's outcome, said the prosecutor, was that blacks "would be unable to handle the reins of power because of inexperience and would have to turn over the reins to those with people who had escaped from Helter Skelter, that is... Manson and his followers."

Miss Tate was slain at her home last Aug. 9 along with four visitors. The next night, 10 miles away, Mr. and Mrs. La Bianca, wealthy market owners, were stabbed to death.

Manson, 33, arrived at the trial Friday in jail denims, a cross slashed into his forehead, framed by his long tangled locks. A defense attorney said Manson cut the cross, himself with a razor blade.

Seated with him were the other defendants, Susan Atkins, 21, in a blue sleeveless pants suit; Patricia Krenwinkel, 22, in a green velvet pants suit, and Leslie Van Houten, 20, in a blue and white striped mini dress.

The prosecutor said the state's star witness, Linda Kasabian, 21, will testify Monday that Manson's followers—including the three women defendants—were "slavishly obedient" to him and killed the seven victims at his command. He said Manson had "total domination" over his followers and described him as "a megalomaniac who coupled with an insatiable thirst for power with a desire for violent death."

First on the stand was Miss Tate's father, retired Army Lt. Col. Paul J. Tate. He identified pictures of his daughter and said he last saw her at her home in July, 1969.

LONDON (AP) — A British engineer who says he has "connections in Greece" was ordered held without bail today on charges of demanding $3.35 million in exchange for scuttling a plot to kidnap Aristotle Onassis and his wife, the former Jacqueline Kennedy.

Police said John Humphreys, 58, made several calls to insurance companies and other London firms telling of a kidnap plot. They said he claimed he had "connections in Greece."

"We drew no conclusions," Greenlee said. "That is the responsibility of the grand jury."

Greenlee refused to comment on a reported FBI study that, according to the Akron Beacon Journal, said the deaths of the students were not necessary and the U.S. Justice Department told Ohio officials that six guardsmen possibly could be charged in the incident.

The commander of the Ohio National Guard, Adj. Gen. Sylvester T. Del Corso, said Friday that the reported FBI findings were "just unbelievable."

"At least the conclusions as stated in the paper by the reporter are just unbelievable... that there were no troops injured, that no stones were thrown and there was a question of whether there was even a riot," he said.

The Beacon Journal said its information came from a 10-page summary of an FBI report on the incident. The summary said there was no hail of rocks thrown by demonstrators and that no guardsmen were hurt.

The incident took place when some 100 guardsmen became surrounded at Kent by some 200 demonstrators, who guardsmen claimed pelted them with rocks and refused to disperse when tear gas was fired at them.

Del Corso reiterated that every man in the 100-man unit had been injured by thrown objects. He said two had teeth knocked out and others required hospital examinations.

The FBI said Friday that it did not draw any conclusions. Asked if the statement was a denial of the Beacon Journal story, a spokesman for the FBI said: "Our statement is merely a position statement that says the FBI does not draw conclusions."

The newspaper said the 10-page summary their story was based on was signed by Jerris Leonard, head of the Justice Department's Civil Rights Division.

Kane called the release of a story about the document "totally irresponsible."

ROME (AP) — Italy's national airline company, Alitalia, canceled more than 50 international flights today because of a 24-hour pilots' strike.

Governor Hits Nixon 'Politics'

FARGO, N.D. (AP) — North Dakota Gov. William L. Guy has accused President Nixon's staff of attempting to turn a nonpolitical meeting with five Midwestern governors into a partisan Republican gathering.

Guy was the only Democrat among the governors who met in Fargo with the President to discuss the problems of rural America.

Republicans denied Guy's allegations Friday.

Presidential press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said later in

Salt Lake City, "The impression I got was that everyone who attended... thought the meeting was nonpartisan and extremely valuable."

Guy termed the official meeting "excellent" but he said Nixon aides had attempted to block his participation in the visit to Fargo, had slighted Sen. Quentin Burdick, D-N.D., by not inviting him and had slighted the governor's wife.

Guy said he was told the White House would handle announcement of the meeting.

"Two hours later," said the four-term governor, "the announcement was made jointly by Congressmen Kleppe and Andrews." Rep. Thomas Kleppe and Mark Andrews are North Dakota Republicans. Kleppe is challenging Burdick for the Senate seat.

Burdick "was treated like an outsider" while the GOP congressmen accompanied the President, Guy told a news conference.

"My wife received her first invitation to the event about 9:30 last night," he said. "She was invited to the style show for Mrs. Nixon but was specifically told not to intrude into any other activities."

Guy also said: "I was at first told that I wouldn't be permitted to greet the President, that Republican party officials would do that. But I overruled the White House aides on that one."

Clear, Mild Weather In Most Areas

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Clear and mild weather favored most of the nation today. Thundershowers were confined to scattered areas across the southern half of the country.

Heavy thunderstorms Friday night flooded streets and numerous basements in Colorado Springs, Colo., and resulted in the drowning of a teenage boy. The storms were accompanied by high winds and large hail.

Downpours also hit other areas south and southwest of Denver in the storms that ranged into Arizona and New Mexico as well.

More than an inch of rain wet down Prescott, Ariz., and a similar amount fell at Roswell, N.M.

Showers diminished in the predawn hours, however, and were limited generally to an area ranging from the Southwest into the Gulf states.

Temperatures overnight were mainly in the 60s and 70s. Cool readings were in the Pacific Northwest, where Quillayute, Wash., had 51. At the same hour, it was 93 at Blythe, Calif.

Urge 'Security' For Parliament

LONDON (AP) — Tightened security measures including a bullet-proof screen are under consideration on demand of members of Parliament because of Thursday's gas-bombing incident in the House of Commons.

Scotland yard's chief trouble-shooter was assigned Friday to figure out means of increasing security. He is John Gerard, a deputy assistant commissioner who has handled security at demonstrations and state ceremonies.

A 26-year-old Irish construction worker, James Anthony Roche, was ordered held for a hearing July 31 on charges stemming from the incident.

Thousands Homeless In Pakistan Floods

DACCA (AP) — An estimated 500,000 people have been affected by floods in 11 of East Pakistan's 19 districts, Pakistani news agencies reported today.

Three people drowned Friday in Chittagong as heavy rains and rising rivers swamped the region. Thousands were left without shelter.

Lull Reported On Cambodian Battle Fronts

SAIGON (AP) — Allied forces claimed killing 119 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops in stepped-up fighting in South Vietnam, but a lull was reported today on Cambodian battlefields.

Two American and two South Vietnamese soldiers were killed and nine Americans and 16 Vietnamese were wounded Friday and today in six widely scattered clashes ranging from South Vietnam's northern Mekong Delta to the central coastal plain.

U.S. Air Force B52 bombers launched heavy raids across the Mekong Delta and in the far northern part of South Vietnam. Thirty of the big Stratofortresses dropped 900 tons of bombs on suspected North Vietnamese installations. Some struck positions 11 miles south of Fire Base Ripcord near the A Shau valley along the Laos frontier.

The firebase, 25 miles west of Hue, was abandoned Thursday under heavy North Vietnamese fire.

Two American helicopters were shot down Friday. The shooting down of one, on the central coastal plain northwest of An Khe, triggered a five-hour battle in which 39 Viet Cong were reported killed and six Americans wounded. Headquarters said there were no casualties in the crash and that the crew was rescued.

The other helicopter was shot down near the scene of fighting in the Mekong Delta. One crewman was reported killed and another wounded.

U.S. air cavalrymen who returned to Vietnam two weeks ago after two months of operations in Cambodia reported killing 24 North Vietnamese soldiers while searching for munitions caches in War Zone D, 48 miles northeast of Saigon. One U.S. soldier was killed.

South Vietnamese troops killed 24 enemy soldiers in two other clashes, one in the delta 85 miles southwest of Saigon and the other in Tay Ninh Province 70 miles northwest of Saigon. Government casualties were listed as one killed and 16 wounded.

Delta Queen Gets Federal Tag As Historic Object

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Park Service has designated the Delta Queen, the last stern-wheel paddle boat on the Ohio and Mississippi rivers, an historic object. The Delta Queen's home port is Cincinnati, Ohio.

The designation, announced Friday and made at the request of Daniel Porter, director of the Ohio Historical Society, was effective June 15.

Spokesmen said the listing has no effect on existing difficulties of the river boat stemming from the boat's wooden superstructure, now banned on the rivers by safety regulations.

Legislation has been introduced in Congress to grant the Delta Queen an exception from these regulations which would permit her continued operation.

Russia Facing Pollution Woes

MOSCOW (AP) — A Communist youth newspaper says the Ural River, one of the mightiest in the Soviet Union, is polluted. Komsomolskaya Pravda reported Friday that the river is "perishing" because of industrial poisons dumped by the cities of Orenburg and Orsk.

The Ural, which empties into the Caspian Sea, once yielded a seemingly endless supply of fish and caviar for Russian and foreign markets. But Komsomolskaya Pravda said:

"In 10 years' time, if one does not take radical measures, there will be nothing to rescue. The Ural will be a dead body of water."

A homemade garment need not look homemade. We all strive to make the look ready made so here are a few techniques to give your masterpiece the professional touch.

The finishing touches done on a garment are often the most important in terms of final overall appearance. Seam finishes often baffle the beginning sewer. There are so many finishes available that it is hard to know which one is right for your fabric. Evaluate your fabric for weight, looseness of weave, and seam durability. Here are some general rules for seam finishes:

1. No finish or pinked — Use for fabrics which are tightly woven and do not ravel. This category includes broadcloth, wool flannel and polyester knits.
2. Pinked and stitched (or zig-zagged) 1/4 inch from edge — Good finish for bonded crepes, ketticloth and others that may have a tendency to ravel some after several cleanings.

3. Edge turned under and stitched — Neat and durable finish for lightweight fabrics with a tendency to ravel. Includes rayon or acetate blouse fabrics, batiste, and blends of synthetic fibers. Caution: this method should be used only on lightweight fabrics to avoid extra bulk in seams.
4. Bound with cotton or rayon bias binding — Particularly neat finish on medium to heavy weight fabrics which ravel. Apply binding over edge of seam allowance and straight stitch or zigzag it. Rayon binding, if available, is less bulky and easier to handle than cotton. Bound seams provide a professional touch on such fabrics as synthetic suitings, quilted nylons and cottons, and wools.

The seam finish you choose can determine the life of your garment so choose carefully.

The finishing touch which may be considered most important is pressing. However, pressing should not only be final but should be done throughout the sewing process. You will avoid much of that unpleasant ripping-out if you press seams open and darts flat as you go. Choose the heat setting carefully, as it is very discouraging to scorch or burn a garment before you wear it. It is a good idea to use a press cloth for all pressing. Try using an old soft linen dishcloth for your lighter weight fabrics. Protect your wools by using a wool and muslin press cloth. Just stitch a piece of muslin to a piece of scrap wool. Use with the wool surface next to your garment.

Areas of special concern in pressing are the collar edges, darts, sleeves and hemline. Various equipment such as a pressing ham, clapper and steam iron will make your job easier. Iron the darts and curved seams over a padded ham; the clapper can be used on heavy fabrics to make flat sharp seams. Allow the steam to penetrate the fabric then give it a firm rap with the clapper. When pressing any fabric avoid heavy, long strokes with the iron. Instead, allow the steam to penetrate, apply pressure, then move to next area and repeat. This method will help you avoid a shiny finish on the surface.

20 Per Cent Of Farm Program Payments Made

About 20 per cent of the 1970 farm program payments earned by producers in Pickaway County have been made, according to George E. Stump, chairman of the Pickaway County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) Committee.

The ASC committee chairman said that in previous years partial payments had been made in advance to feed grain participants. Budget restraints this year made it impossible to make any farm payments before July 1, the beginning of the Government's fiscal year.

"As soon as that date arrived, however, farm program payments began. We expect to complete them within the next three weeks here in Pickaway County, which will be the earliest date we have ever completed farm program payments," Stump added.

He commented that producers participating in the farm programs have earned payments by helping stabilize markets and by giving up the use of productive cropland that would otherwise have been put into cash crops or other income-producing uses.

INSTEAD, they maintain the land in conserving uses which help prevent soil erosion and air and water pollution.

The farm programs in which they participate help achieve a balance between commodity supply and demand. They also help producers work together to curb excess production and strengthen markets.

Stump said success of the early-payment plan has hinged on close cooperation by farmers and results have been gratifying.

Wheat Is Good Livestock Feed When Price Is Low

By GEORGE HAMRICK

County Extension Agent, Agriculture

The sharp decline in the market price for No. 2 wheat and the application of more stringent standards for various market grades has generated considerable interest in the use of wheat as a feed grain.

Persons considering such a move need to consider the nutrients present in wheat and the limitations that should be observed in the percentage of wheat included in concentrate mixtures.

Wheat should be considered as a substitute for some of the shelled corn that would normally be in the mixture. Wheat and shelled corn are similar in content of minerals, crude fiber and shelled corn are similar in (TDN).

The varieties of soft red winter wheat commonly grown in Ohio, however, contain 10.2 per cent crude protein rather than the 8.8 per cent to 8.6 per cent crude protein found in shelled corn. Therefore, when wheat is substituted for shelled corn in a concentrate mixture, less high protein supplement needs be added.

THE higher crude protein percentage of wheat makes it 5 per cent to 10 per cent more valuable than corn as a feed for most farm livestock, but not for poultry. Therefore, when wheat and shelled corn have the same market value per pound, it is profitable to feed wheat to most livestock.

When wheat sells for less than corn, it can also be fed profitably to poultry. Comparisons based on the market price per bushel are not valid because a bushel of wheat is assumed to weigh 60 pounds and a bushel of corn only 56 pounds.

Wheat should be coarsely ground for all species of animals, and when used in mash rations for poultry. Fine grinding produces a flour-like meal that is less palatable.

There are some limitations in the amount of wheat that should be used in the concentrate mixtures for various species of livestock. Budgeting the wheat supply to last throughout the feeding period usually solves the problem.

When changes are made in rations, they should be made gradually.

Wheat is a palatable grain that can be used to provide up to 50 per cent of the grain used participants accurately certified their compliance with farm program requirements as soon as they could.

Spot-checks made by ASCS personnel on individual farms throughout the county have revealed a very low degree of error in reporting of planted and diverted acres and conserving-use acres by producers in the feed grain and wheat programs.

in a concentrate mixture for dairy cattle. Larger amounts have been used but are not routinely recommended. Wheat should be substituted for shelled corn on a pound-for-pound basis. If it is substituted for corn and cob meal, a heavier mixture containing more TDN per pound or unit of volume will result. This will not cause digestive upset and may increase milk production, if underfeeding has been a problem in the herd.

THE amount of high protein supplement needed will be reduced when wheat is added to the concentrate mixture but salt and phosphorus supplementation should continue.

In grain mixtures for fattening lambs and beef cattle, 25 per cent of the shelled corn normally fed can be replaced by ground wheat. Growing fattening swine also utilize wheat efficiently, and 50 per cent of the shelled corn in their rations can be replaced by ground wheat.

Brood cows and ewes whose rations are predominately roughage, at times need limited amounts of grain to provide additional energy. Under these conditions ground wheat can replace 100 per cent of the ground shelled corn needed.

Wheat can replace 50 per cent of the shelled corn normally fed to brood sows.

For feeding poultry, the metabolizable energy value of wheat is about 10 per cent less than that of corn, while the crude protein content of wheat is 20 per cent greater than that of corn.

Therefore, when wheat replaces corn in a formula, the protein content of the finished feed increases, while its energy value decreases. If constant protein and energy composition of the formula is to be maintained, high protein supplement used in the formula should be reduced and replaced by high energy ingredients like the grains or feed grade fat.

WHEN wheat replaces corn in a poultry feed the pigmentation value of the ration decreases. Thus, a laying ration in which wheat replaces corn will result in the production of eggs having less yellow color in their yolks.

Skin pigmentation in boilers would be similarly affected. To avoid reduction in pigmentation, more alfalfa meal needs to be added to the wheat-based formula.

Additional alfalfa meal reduces the energy content of a poultry feed, so further adjustments in energy composition would be necessary to maintain constant nutrient composition.

If a feed formula depends on corn as a source of vitamin A, a wheat based ration would require additional vitamin A supplementation.

All factors considered, wheat

can be used to replace corn completely in poultry feeds, if other formula adjustments indicated above are made to assure proper nutrient composition of the finished feed. From an economic point of view, wheat is worth somewhat less than corn in its feeding value for poultry.

And So It Grows

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent, Agriculture

If you are getting overanxious about your vegetables maturing, count the number of days between flowering and maturity and you'll know when to expect the first harvest. Allow about 7-10 days for snap beans; 4-5 days for pickles; 14-18 days for cucumbers; 7-weeks for muskmelons; 11-12 weeks for winter squash; and eight weeks for acorn or table queen squash.

The amount of time needed for tomatoes varies considerably, depending on variety and season of harvest. Some 45-55 days or longer will be needed for most varieties. About the same length of time will be needed for sweet peppers to reach the green stage and another 15 days for them to become red. Sweet corn will mature in 18-24 days after half of the silks have appeared.

Rate of maturity may vary with temperature, length of day, rainfall, variety characteristics, soil fertility and slope of garden.

Keep your tomato plants vigorous for a plentiful harvest. Follow a good spray program with an effective fungicide to control early blight, a common disease of tomato plants. Maneb applied at the rate of 1 1/2 tablespoons per gallon of water will do the job. Other materials such as captan and zineb at 2 1/2 tablespoons per gallon of water also will protect plants. Apply materials at 7-10 day intervals or more often if wet, humid weather persists. Symptoms of this disease are target-like spots on lower, yellowing leaves. The spots will be irregular and dark brown and may range in size from pin-point to half-inch in diameter on older leaves.

Lack of water will affect yields of vegetables during August. This is a critical time in many gardens. If water is available, apply at least one inch of water per week on a particular area before moving the sprinkler. Some well grown crops such as cabbage, cauliflower, potatoes and tomatoes may need double that amount, especially during hot, windy weather. Apply the water before the crops have started to wilt. Tin cans with straight sides can be used to measure the amount of water applied.

Silver maple trees often show numerous red blotches on the undersides of the leaves this time of year. The red that you see is the plant's response to a species of mites feeding. According to Extension entomologists at The Ohio State University, these mites probably aren't doing enough damage to merit the expense or effort of a spray treatment.

3. Edge turned under and stitched — Neat and durable finish for lightweight fabrics with a tendency to ravel. Includes rayon or acetate blouse fabrics, batiste, and blends of synthetic fibers. Caution: this method should be used only on lightweight fabrics to avoid extra bulk in seams.

4. Bound with cotton or rayon bias binding — Particularly neat finish on medium to heavy weight fabrics which ravel. Apply binding over edge of seam allowance and straight stitch or zigzag it. Rayon binding, if available, is less bulky and easier to handle than cotton. Bound seams provide a professional touch on such fabrics as synthetic suitings, quilted nylons and cottons, and wools.

The seam finish you choose can determine the life of your garment so choose carefully. The finishing touch which may be considered most important is pressing. However, pressing should not only be final but should be done throughout the sewing process. You will avoid much of that unpleasant ripping-out if you press seams open and darts flat as you go. Choose the heat setting carefully, as it is very discouraging to scorch or burn a garment before you wear it. It is a good idea to use a press cloth for all pressing. Try using an old soft linen dishcloth for your lighter weight fabrics. Protect your wools by using a wool and muslin press cloth. Just stitch a piece of muslin to a piece of scrap wool. Use with the wool surface next to your garment.

Areas of special concern in pressing are the collar edges, darts, sleeves and hemline. Various equipment such as a pressing ham, clapper and steam iron will make your job easier. Iron the darts and curved seams over a padded ham; the clapper can be used on heavy fabrics to make flat sharp seams. Allow the steam to penetrate the fabric then give it a firm rap with the clapper. When pressing any fabric avoid heavy, long strokes with the iron. Instead, allow the steam to penetrate, apply pressure, then move to next area and repeat. This method will help you avoid a shiny finish on the surface.

Wheat Is Good Livestock Feed When Price Is Low

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent, Agriculture

The sharp decline in the market price for No. 2 wheat and the application of more stringent standards for various market grades has generated considerable interest in the use of wheat as a feed grain.

Persons considering such a move need to consider the nutrients present in wheat and the limitations that should be observed in the percentage of wheat included in concentrate mixtures.

Wheat should be considered as a substitute for some of the shelled corn that would normally be in the mixture. Wheat and shelled corn are similar in content of minerals, crude fiber and shelled corn are similar in (TDN).

The varieties of soft red winter wheat commonly grown in Ohio, however, contain 10.2 per cent crude protein rather than the 8.8 per cent to 8.6 per cent crude protein found in shelled corn. Therefore, when wheat is substituted for shelled corn in a concentrate mixture, less high protein supplement needs to be added.

THE higher crude protein percentage of wheat makes it 5 per cent to 10 per cent more valuable than corn as a feed for most farm livestock, but not for poultry. Therefore, when wheat and shelled corn have the same market value per pound, it is profitable to feed wheat to most livestock.

When wheat sells for less than corn, it can also be fed profitably to poultry. Comparisons based on the market price per bushel are not valid because a bushel of wheat is assumed to weigh 60 pounds and a bushel of corn only 56 pounds. Wheat should be coarsely ground for all species of animals, and when used in mash rations for poultry. Fine grinding produces a flour-like meal that is less palatable.

There are some limitations in the amount of wheat that should be used in the concentrate mixtures for various species of livestock. Budgeting the wheat supply to last throughout the feeding period usually solves the problem.

When changes are made in rations, they should be made gradually.

Wheat is a palatable grain that can be used to provide up to 50 per cent of the grain used participants accurately certified their compliance with farm program requirements as soon as they could.

Spot-checks made by ASCS personnel on individual farms throughout the county have revealed a very low degree of error in reporting of planted and diverted acres and conserving-use acres by producers in the feed grain and wheat programs.

in a concentrate mixture for dairy cattle. Larger amounts have been used but are not routinely recommended. Wheat should be substituted for shelled corn on a pound-for-pound basis. If it is substituted for corn and cob meal, a heavier mixture containing more TDN per pound or unit of volume will result. This will not cause digestive upset and may increase milk production, if underfeeding has been a problem in the herd.

THE amount of high protein supplement needed will be reduced when wheat is added to the concentrate mixture but salt and phosphorus supplementation should continue.

In grain mixtures for fattening lambs and beef cattle, 25 per cent of the shelled corn normally fed can be replaced by ground wheat. Growing fattening swine also utilize wheat efficiently, and 50 per cent of the shelled corn in their rations can be replaced by ground wheat.

Brood cows and ewes whose rations are predominately roughage, at times need limited amounts of grain to provide additional energy. Under these conditions ground wheat can replace 100 per cent of the ground shelled corn needed.

Wheat can replace 50 per cent of the shelled corn normally fed to brood sows.

For feeding poultry, the metabolizable energy value of wheat is about 10 per cent less than that of corn, while the crude protein content of wheat is 20 per cent greater than that of corn.

Therefore, when wheat replaces corn in a formula, the protein content of the finished feed increases, while its energy value decreases. If constant protein and energy composition of the formula is to be maintained, high protein supplement used in the formula should be reduced and replaced by high energy ingredients like the grains or feed grade fat.

WHEN wheat replaces corn in a poultry feed the pigmentation value of the ration decreases. Thus, a laying ration in which wheat replaces corn will result in the production of eggs having less yellow color in their yolks.

Skin pigmentation in boilers would be similarly affected. To avoid reduction in pigmentation, more alfalfa meal needs to be added to the wheat based formula.

Additional alfalfa meal reduces the energy content of a poultry feed, so further adjustments in energy composition would be necessary to maintain constant nutrient composition. If a feed formula depends on corn as a source of vitamin A, a wheat based ration would require additional vitamin A supplementation.

All factors considered, wheat

can be used to replace corn completely in poultry feeds, if other formula adjustments indicated above are made to assure proper nutrient composition of the finished feed. From an economic point of view, wheat is worth somewhat less than corn in its feeding value for poultry.

And So It Grows

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent, Agriculture

If you are getting overanxious about your vegetables maturing, count the number of days between flowering and maturity and you'll know when to expect the first harvest. Allow about 7-10 days for snap beans; 4-5 days for pickles; 14-18 days for cucumbers; 7-weeks for muskmelons; 11-12 weeks for winter squash; and eight weeks for acorn or table queen squash.

The amount of time needed for tomatoes varies considerably, depending on variety and season of harvest. Some 45-55 days or longer will be needed for most varieties. About the same length of time will be needed for sweet peppers to reach the green stage and another 15 days for them to become red. Sweet corn will mature in 18-24 days after half of the silks have appeared.

Rate of maturity may vary with temperature, length of day, rainfall, variety characteristics, soil fertility and slope of garden.

Keep your tomato plants vigorous for a plentiful harvest. Follow a good spray program with an effective fungicide to control early blight, a common disease of tomato plants. Maneb applied at the rate of 1 1/2 tablespoons per gallon of water will do the job. Other materials such as captan and zineb at 1 1/2 tablespoons per gallon of water also will protect plants. Apply materials at 7-10 day intervals or more often if wet, humid weather persists. Symptoms of this disease are target-like spots on lower, yellowing leaves. The spots will be irregular and dark brown and may range in size from pin-point to half-inch in diameter on older leaves.

Lack of water will affect yields of vegetables during August. This is a critical time in many gardens. If water is available, apply at least one inch of water per week on a particular area before moving the sprinkler. Some well grown crops such as cabbage, cauliflower, potatoes and tomatoes may need double that amount, especially during hot, windy weather. Apply the water before the crops have started to wilt. Tin cans with straight sides can be used to measure the amount of water applied.

Silver maple trees often show numerous red blotches on the undersides of the leaves this time of year. The red that you see is the plant's response to a species of mites feeding. According to Extension entomologists at The Ohio State University, these mites probably aren't doing enough damage to merit the expense or effort of a spray treatment.

Will Summer marketing shrink your hog profits?

Not if you deliver to Heinold.

It's going to be hot in the next two months—hot enough to shrink pounds off your hogs enroute to market. That heat will rob them of more weight if they must wait around, or be showed around during the selling process. And you're the guy that pays for the shrink!

Why throw away your profit! Load up your hogs early in the morning for a short, quick ride to Heinold Hog Market. Your hogs will be weighed immediately and your check written right away on arrival weights. Within an hour after you leave the farm, you can be on your way home with a bigger hog check.

Let Heinold pick up the bill for most of your hogs' shrink.

Serving America's Farmers: Providers of Plenty

Dear Abby: By Abigail Van Buren

A Wife's Duty Is To Her Husband

DEAR ABBY: Recently you had a letter from a young wife whose husband was offered a better job in another state. She was reluctant to leave her mother as she was an only child, and you advised her to move with her husband.

Abby, I realize that a woman's first duty is to her husband, but why must money and position come before one's parents who have spent the best years of their lives raising their children in the hope that in their later years they will have someone to visit them and comfort them?

When children move hundreds of miles from their parents, visiting is a financial burden and also an inconvenience. What's the use of having children if all you have to look forward to is a visit from them every year or two?

It seems as though society doesn't think family love is important anymore. It's the almighty dollar that counts.

CLOSE TO MOTHER DEAR CLOSE: You say you realize that a woman's first duty is to her husband. You're right. But if he must move in order to accept a better job in another state, there is more than "the almighty dollar" involved. His sense of accomplishment and confidence is his ability to succeed and climb higher is at stake. The wife who asks him to stay where he is and pass up promotion because she wants to stay close to her parents is doing her husband a tremendous disservice.

It's nice, I agree, when parents can have their children near to visit them and comfort them in their old age, but that is not the reason parents raise children. (And if it is, it shouldn't be.)

DEAR ABBY: I have a complaint which I certainly hope you will give a little publicity to because I am sure others have the same complaint. It's the utter and complete thoughtlessness with which some people select retirement gifts.

Example? My siser has just retired, and some of her co-workers called and asked me for "suggestions" for a gift for her. I said, "She is moving into a mobile home and is getting rid of a lot of things, so why don't you give her a gift certificate and let her buy what she wants? (My sister had just given her daughter all her china, stemware and silver, and she kept only one set of dishes and a set of stainless steel to use in her limited quarters.)

So what did her co-workers give her? A set of china (108 pieces) and a hug silver tray, inscribed, "Best wishes for a long and happy life. The employees of—". She has to stand the tray on the floor as there is no cupboard large enough to hold it. The dishes she is considering taking to a gift exchange place.

ALSO RETIRED DEAR ALSO: I can understand some well-meaning co-workers selecting an inappropriate gift, but when they go to the trouble of asking there is no excuse for such colossal goofs.

DEAR ABBY: I just finished cleaning up after a family dinner, and for once I am not "beat."

We have one son who has been married for 10 years. He and his wife (and her parents) have eaten at my home so many times I couldn't begin to count them.

My husband and I have eaten at my son's home twice, and at her parents' home twice.

Tonight, I did not lay the table as usual with my nice china, sterling, crystal, and linen. I used sturdy paper plates, plastic cups and my everyday stainless.

Eyebrows were raised, but I got compliments on my food as usual. I might add that my daughter-in-law and her mother are both fabulous cooks, but they cannot be bothered to have guests.

What a job to throw out those paper plates, plastic cups and paper napkins!

Cereal Makers Defend Products Against Detractors

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cereal makers have defended their breakfast foods as nutritious and wholesome in the face of Senate testimony of a nutrition expert who said most cereals contribute little to good health.

Most leading dry cereal makers defended their products against the accusations of Robert B. Choate, 40, a Washington based citizen-lobbyist. Some major producers indicated he didn't know what he was talking about.

Choate appeared before the Senate consumer subcommittee armed with results of a study he made that showed 40 out of 60 types of cereals lacked enough nutritional value to rate as half a complete meal.

A spokesman for Kellogg Co. said "leading nutrition authorities in the nation just do not agree with Mr. Choate."

Dr. John J. Hopper, Kellogg's director of research, said "civil engineer Choate's theories and so-called formula might be meaningful or applicable if you are digging a mineshaft, but they are completely valueless as a yardstick for measuring the nutritional values of any type food—not just a cereal."

Choate, a former consultant to the White House, Department of Health, Education and Welfare and several congressional committees, said his ranking of the 60 cereals oversimplified the interaction of nutrients. But "it does portray what cereal companies are boasting about on their own boxes."

General Foods, makers of Post cereals, said Choate's study and testimony included "a great many technical errors," one of which it said was the condemnation of presweetened cereals on the grounds they may lead to the consumption of too much sugar.

"In our opinion, exactly the opposite is true," the company said. "Presweetened cereals provide a measure of control over sugar intake that is not present when the young consumer sweetens his own."

Nabisco, maker of the bottom-ranked cereal, Shredded Wheat, defended its product as "an excellent source of nutrition," which is recognized as such by "experts in the field, the medical profession and dieticians."

Reminders Given On Use Of Diverted Acres

Farmers in Pickaway County are reminded they may not harvest their diverted acres that are signed up in the 1970 wheat and feed grain programs, George E. Stump, chairman of the Pickaway County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) Committee said.

Stump also reminded farmers not to allow grazing on their diverted acres until after the "prohibited grazing" period. Here in Pickaway County, this period ends September 1.

A third reminder, the ASC chairman said, is that diverted acres must be maintained in a soil conserving use. This includes, he said, control of erosion, weeds, insects and rodents. These practices are especially important in that they help reduce silt pollution of streams, lakes and rivers.

Conserving base acres in the 1970 farm programs may be harvested for hay, or grazed anytime Stump said, but they cannot be converted to a non-conserving use, he added, such as growing grain for harvest.

While most program participants are familiar with these regulations, the chairman said he suggests that producers who have questions or need further program information call or visit their county ASCS office.

Wife-Swapping Story Brings Libel Action

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (AP) — A $19,875,000 libel suit against the Youngstown Vindicator has been filed in Trumbull County Common Pleas Court by members of the Warren Police Department, their husbands and wives.

The 159 plaintiffs allege in the suit filed Friday that the newspaper "maliciously and falsely printed that there existed a 'wife swapping' club" among members of the Warren Police Department" in a story which appeared in the newspaper Aug. 6, 1969.

Each of the plaintiffs claimed that earning capacities were damaged and charged the newspaper with libel. Each asked $25,000 in compensatory damages and $100,000 in punitive damages as well as attorney fees and court costs.

Hungry Fleas Apt To Greet Returning Vacationers

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent,
Agriculture

Don't panic if you return from vacation and find your house filled with fleas. Many pet owners return home from a couple weeks at the beach to just such a situation, says William F. Lyon, Extension

Farm Storage Grain Loans Available

Pickaway County farmers can apply for loans to purchase grain storage and drying equipment any time of the year George Stump, chairman of the Pickaway County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) Committee said.

However, he suggests that farmers apply now for a loan, rather than wait, so the storage facility will be ready for the fall grain crop. Loans can be made for facilities that will store up to two years' eligible commodities produced on the farm, the ASC Chairman said.

To be eligible for a loan, a farmer must grow an eligible crop and he must show that he needs the proposed storage and drying equipment. Eligible crops are corn, oats, barley, wheat, rye and soybeans.

"Adequate storage for a big grain crop in the fall makes sense," Stump said, "because you're not caught in the bind of having to sell just when prices are lowest at the peak of harvest."

Storage facility loans are repaid in four annual installments over five years with the first payment due one year after the loan is made. The current annual interest rate is 7 1/2 per cent. Loan applications and more detailed information on storage facility and drying equipment loans are available from the Pickaway County ASCS Office, 1440 N. Court St. The phone number is 474-3151.

Entomologist at The Ohio State University.

This flea invasion seems mysterious to homeowners since no fleas were evident before leaving on vacation. Actually, immature fleas develop into adults in the unoccupied house and in the absence of their normal dog or cat host.

These new adult fleas and existing old fleas turn their attention to the returning vacationer as a new source of a blood meal. Fleas (the adults) can live without a blood meal for many weeks, Lyon says.

Although most fleas are capable of transmitting infectious disease, allergic reactions to flea bites cause most complaints. Flea bites are found primarily on the legs and ankles but may occur any other place on the body, especially on small children, he says.

THE bite is rarely felt, but the hard, red, itching area that appears after the bite is most irritating. The irritation may persist a few minutes, hours or even days.

In Ohio, the "cat flea" and "dog flea" are most common. They resemble each other in appearance and have habits and life cycles that are similar.

Flea infestations in the home or in the yard may be traced to a dog or cat, or on rare occasions, to rats or squirrels. Immature fleas often live in debris found in the bedding or immediate area where the host animal sleeps. Normally, fleas feed only on the host dog or cat, but populations may build up to the point where they attack humans.

Sanitation is very important. Clean the house thoroughly and frequently with a strong suction-type vacuum cleaner. Fleas of all life stages are then effectively collected and the sweeper bag contents can be burned.

Collect lint and dust found in cracks and crevices along floor boards, baseboards and the pet's sleeping area to prevent flea breeding and reproduction. Often, the bedding or other places where the pet sleeps are infested with both adult and immature fleas.

To control fleas on dogs and cats, use a powder or dust that contains no more than five per cent malathion, five per cent methoxychlor, five per cent carbaryl (Sevin), 1.5 per cent rotenone or one per cent pyrethrins. Carbaryl should not be used on cats under four weeks of age. Flea powders sold for dogs and cats often contain several of these insecticides in combination, each at lower concentrations than when used alone.

YOU can use a spray that has no more than 0.5 per cent malathion or 0.5 per cent methoxychlor.

The use of dichlorvos (DDVP, Vapona) dog or cat collars is very effective for flea control when worn by the animal regularly. Occasionally, the dog or cat may show discomfort for a few minutes after an insecticide has been applied. This is due to the increased flea activity in the last moments before the pests die.

Fleas in the home can be eliminated by pyrethrum aerosol mist sprays used generously in each room, leaving doors and windows shut for 15-20 minutes. Then vacuum rooms carefully and thoroughly to pick up paralyzed and dead fleas. Burn the sweeper bag contents.

In animal quarters and yards, treat under the dog house, in the yard, in pens and areas under kennels with water base sprays of either one per cent diazinon, or one per cent ronnel (Korlan). Apply prepared sprays to the yard at the rate of one gallon per 1,000 square feet. Dusts of four per cent diazinon, or five per cent ronnel, applied at the rate of 1 1/2 pounds per 1,000 square feet are effective.

Dear Abby: By Abigail Van Buren

A Wife's Duty Is To Her Husband

DEAR ABBY: Recently you had a letter from a young wife whose husband was offered a better job in another state. She was reluctant to leave her mother as she was an only child, and you advised her to move with her husband.

Abby, I realize that a woman's first duty is to her husband, but why must money and position come before one's parents who have spent the best years of their lives raising their children in the hope that in their later years they will have someone to visit them and comfort them?

When children move hundreds of miles from their parents, visiting is a financial burden and also an inconvenience. What's the use of having children if all you have to look forward to is a visit from them every year or two?

It seems as though society doesn't think family love is important anymore. It's the almighty dollar that counts.

CLOSE TO MOTHER
DEAR CLOSE: You say you realize that a woman's first duty is to her husband. You're right. But if he must move in order to accept a better job in another state, there is more than "the almighty dollar" involved. His sense of accomplishment and confidence is his ability to succeed and climb higher is at stake. The wife who asks him to stay where he is and pass up promotion because she wants to stay close to her parents is doing her husband a tremendous disservice.

It's nice, I agree, when parents can have their children near to visit them and comfort them in their old age, but that is not the reason parents raise children. (And if it is, it shouldn't be.)

DEAR ABBY: I have a complaint which I certainly hope you will give a little publicity to because I am sure others have the same complaint. It's the utter and complete thoughtlessness with which some people select retirement gifts.

Example? My siser has just retired, and some of her co-workers called and asked me for "suggestions" for a gift for her. I said, "She is moving into a mobile home and is getting rid of a lot of things, so why don't you give her a gift certificate and let her buy what she wants? (My sister had just given her daughter all her china, stemware and silver, and she kept only one set of dishes and a set of stainless steel to use in her limited quarters.)

So what did her co-workers give her? A set of china (108 pieces) and a hug silver tray, inscribed, "Best wishes for a long and happy life. The employees of—". She has to stand the tray on the floor as there is no cupboard large enough to hold it. The dishes she is considering taking to a gift exchange place.

ALSO RETIRED
DEAR ALSO: I can understand some well-meaning co-workers selecting an inappropriate gift, but when they go to the trouble of asking there is no excuse for such colossal goofs.

DEAR ABBY: I just finished cleaning up after a family dinner, and for once I am not "beat."

We have one son who has been married for 10 years. He and his wife (and her parents) have eaten at my home so many times I couldn't begin to count them.

My husband and I have eaten at my son's home twice, and at her parents' home twice.

Tonight, I did not lay the table as usual with my nice china, sterling, crystal, and linen. I used sturdy paper plates, plastic cups and my everyday stainless.

Eyebrows were raised, but I got compliments on my food as usual. I might add that my daughter-in-law and her mother are both fabulous cooks, but they cannot be bothered to have guests.

What a job to throw out those paper plates, plastic cups and paper napkins!

Cereal Makers Defend Products Against Detractors

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cereal makers have defended their breakfast foods as nutritious and wholesome in the face of Senate testimony of a nutrition expert who said most cereals contribute little to good health.

Most leading dry cereal makers defended their products against the accusations of Robert B. Choate, 40, a Washington based citizen-lobbyist. Some major producers indicated he didn't know what he was talking about.

Choate appeared before the Senate consumer subcommittee armed with results of a study he made that showed 40 out of 60 types of cereals lacked enough nutritional value to rate as half a complete meal.

A spokesman for Kellogg Co. said "leading nutrition authorities in the nation just do not agree with Mr. Choate."

Dr. John J. Hopper, Kellogg's director of research, said "civil engineer Choate's theories and so-called formula might be meaningful or applicable if you are digging a mineshaft, but they are completely valueless as a yardstick for measuring the nutritional values of any type food—not just a cereal."

Choate, a former consultant to the White House, Department of Health, Education and Welfare and several congressional committees, said his ranking of the 60 cereals oversimplified the interaction of nutrients. But "it does portray what cereal companies are boasting about on their own boxes."

General Foods, makers of Post cereals, said Choate's study and testimony included "a great many technical errors," one of which it said was the condemnation of presweetened cereals on the grounds they may lead to the consumption of too much sugar.

"In our opinion, exactly the opposite is true," the company said. "Presweetened cereals provide a measure of control over sugar intake that is not present when the young consumer sweetens his own."

Nabisco, maker of the bottom-ranked cereal, Shredded Wheat, defended its product as "an excellent source of nutrition," which is recognized as such by "experts in the field, the medical profession and dietitians."

Reminders Given On Use Of Diverted Acres

Farmers in Pickaway County are reminded they may not harvest their diverted acres that are signed up in the 1970 wheat and feed grain programs, George E. Stump, chairman of the Pickaway County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) Committee said.

Stump also reminded farmers not to allow grazing on their diverted acres until after the "prohibited grazing" period. Here in Pickaway County, this period ends September 1.

A third reminder, the ASC chairman said, is that diverted acres must be maintained in a soil conserving use. This includes, he said, control of erosion, weeds, insects and rodents. These practices are especially important in that they help reduce silt pollution of streams, lakes and rivers.

Conserving base acres in the 1970 farm programs may be harvested for hay, or grazed anytime Stump said, but they cannot be converted to a non-conserving use, he added, such as growing grain for harvest.

While most program participants are familiar with these regulations, the chairman said he suggests that producers who have questions or need further program information call or visit their county ASCS office.

Wife-Swapping Story Brings Libel Action

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (AP) — A $19,875,000 libel suit against the Youngstown Vindicator has been filed in Trumbull County Common Pleas Court by members of the Warren Police Department, their husbands and wives.

The 159 plaintiffs allege in the suit filed Friday that the newspaper "maliciously and falsely printed that there existed a 'wife swapping' club" among members of the Warren Police Department in a story which appeared in the newspaper Aug. 6, 1969.

Each of the plaintiffs claimed that earning capacities were damaged and charged the newspaper with libel. Each asked $25,000 in compensatory damages and $100,000 in punitive damages as well as attorney fees and court costs.

Hungry Fleas Apt To Greet Returning Vacationers

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent,
Agriculture

Don't panic if you return from vacation and find your house filled with fleas. Many pet owners return home from a couple weeks at the beach to just such a situation, says William F. Lyon, Extension

Farm Storage Grain Loans Available

Pickaway County farmers can apply for loans to purchase grain storage and drying equipment any time of the year, George Stump, chairman of the Pickaway County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) Committee said.

However, he suggests that farmers apply now for a loan, rather than wait, so the storage facility will be ready for the fall grain crop. Loans can be made for facilities that will store up to two years' eligible commodities produced on the farm, the ASC Chairman said.

To be eligible for a loan, a farmer must grow an eligible crop and he must show that he needs the proposed storage and drying equipment. Eligible crops are corn, oats, barley, wheat, rye and soybeans.

"Adequate storage for a big grain crop in the fall makes sense," Stump said, "because you're not caught in the bind of having to sell just when prices are lowest at the peak of harvest."

Storage facility loans are repaid in four annual installments over five years with the first payment due one year after the loan is made. The current annual interest rate is 7½ per cent. Loan applications and more detailed information on storage facility and drying equipment loans are available from the Pickaway County ASCS Office, 1440 N. Court St. The phone number is 474-3151.

Entomologist at The Ohio State University.

This flea invasion seems mysterious to homeowners since no fleas were evident before leaving on vacation. Actually, immature fleas develop into adults in the unoccupied house and in the absence of their normal dog or cat host.

These new adult fleas and existing old fleas turn their attention to the returning vacationer as a new source of a blood meal. Fleas (the adults) can live without a blood meal for many weeks, Lyon says.

Although most fleas are capable of transmitting infectious disease, allergic reactions to flea bites cause most complaints. Flea bites are found primarily on the legs and ankles but may occur any other place on the body, especially on small children, he says.

THE bite is rarely felt, but the hard, red, itching area that appears after the bite is most irritating. The irritation may persist a few minutes, hours or even days.

In Ohio, the "cat flea" and "dog flea" are most common. They resemble each other in appearance and have habits and life cycles that are similar.

Flea infestations in the home or in the yard may be traced to a dog or cat, or on rare occasions, to rats or squirrels. Immature fleas often live in debris found in the bedding or immediate area where the host animal sleeps. Normally, fleas feed only on the host dog or cat, but populations may build up to the point where they attack humans.

Sanitation is very important. Clean the house thoroughly and frequently with a strong suction-type vacuum cleaner. Fleas of all life stages are then effectively collected and the sweeper bag contents can be burned.

Collect lint and dust found in cracks and crevices along floor boards, baseboards and the pet's sleeping area to prevent flea breeding and reproduction. Often, the bedding or other places where the pet sleeps are infested with both adult and immature fleas.

To control fleas on dogs and cats, use a powder or dust that contains no more than five per cent malathion, five per cent methoxychlor, five per cent carbaryl (Sevin), 1.5 per cent rotenone or one per cent pyrethrins. Carbaryl should not be used on cats under four weeks of age. Flea powders sold for dogs and cats often contain several of these insecticides in combination, each at lower concentrations than when used alone.

YOU can use a spray that has no more than 0.5 per cent malathion or 0.5 per cent methoxychlor.

The use of dichlorvos (DDVP, Vapona) dog or cat collars is very effective for flea control when worn by the animal regularly. Occasionally, the dog or cat may show discomfort for a few minutes after an insecticide has been applied. This is due to the increased flea activity in the last moments before the pests die.

Fleas in the home can be eliminated by pyrethrum aerosol mist sprays used generously in each room, leaving doors and windows shut for 15-20 minutes. Then vacuum rooms carefully and thoroughly to pick up paralyzed and dead fleas. Burn the sweeper bag contents.

In animal quarters and yards, treat under the dog house, in the yard, in pens and areas under kennels with water base sprays of either one per cent diazinon, or one per cent ronnel (Korlan). Apply prepared sprays to the yard at the rate of one gallon per 1,000 square feet. Dusts of four per cent diazinon, or five per cent ronnel, applied at the rate of 1½ pounds per 1,000 square feet are effective.

For Less Secrecy

Under the House of Representatives' present procedure, the legislative process — from subcommittee, to committee, to the House floor, to House-Senate conference — all too often is carried out in secrecy.

On the committee level, almost all business is conducted behind closed doors, beyond the scrutiny of the public and of most members of Congress. In the House itself, members are not held accountable for their votes on the amendments that so often shape legislation.

And in conference, business again is conducted in secret, and obfuscatory reporting procedures make effective challenge to a conference's conclusions all but impossible.

A sizable bipartisan coalition of House members has now offered a series of antiseccrecy amendments to the timorous congressional reform bill reported out by the House Rules Committee in May. One proposal stipulates that every committee hearing be open unless a majority of members votes otherwise in public session.

Another requires that committee roll-call votes be made public. A third calls for conference committee reports to be printed in the Congressional Record three days before floor action.

The most significant reform is that of eliminating secrecy on the House floor. In considering amendments, the House now organizes itself as a Committee of the whole, an arrangement that conveniently precludes on-the-record voting.

Questions then are resolved through standing or voice votes or through a teller vote, in which members file down the House aisle, are counted for or against an issue, but are not identified by name.

Under the new proposals an on-the-record teller vote would be conducted when ever requested by a minimum of 20 members. A congressman's name would be listed as he cast his vote and his position would be made public.

The new arrangement doubtless would alter the voting habits of representatives who, behind the shield of secrecy, have subordinated the concerns of the electorate to those of special interest groups. It also could produce a marked improvement in the House's attendance record, which, usually runs about 30 per cent from non-record votes.

And, not incidentally, it would do much to enhance the House's standing as a responsive and responsible body.

Try and Stop Me

NEAR the end of World War II, food conservationists plastered placards all through army installations reminding wasteful GI's, "Food Will Win the War." Underneath one of the placards a mischievous private penciled, "Agreed—but how can we get the Japs over here to eat it?"

Golf tournaments are elegant affairs these days, with big corporations putting up thousands of dollars in prize money, and contestants dressed in dazzling garb which they're paid large sums to wear by publicity-seeking manufacturers. It wasn't too long ago, however, when touring pros were happy to play for a small fraction of the fees they command today and often depended upon side bets they made with one another for a principal source of revenue. Dan Jenkins, in his "The Dogged Victims of Inexorable Fate," a book which will delight all golf addicts, tells of one tournament in the 1930's that came down to the eighteenth green with Bobby Cruikshank leading Wild Bill Melhorn by a single stroke. Melhorn's only chance to tie was for Cruikshank to take three putts on that last green. He accordingly climbed a live oak bordering the green in the hope of making enough noise to distract Cruikshank. Unfortunately for Melhorn, Cruikshank not only sank his long putt for a birdie, but Mr. Melhorn fell out of the tree, without a backspin, and landed on the straw-bonneted and outraged official scorer of the tournament.

Speaking Of Your Health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

A small electronic machine has been widely used in Russia to induce sleep in people with marked insomnia. The device is powered with a battery that sends a slight current, painlessly and safely to the brain to help relaxation and sleep.

Dr. Milton Kline, head of the Research Division of the Morton Prince Center for Hypnotherapy in New York City has been using the Electrosonic instrument for electrosleep in some highly anxious patients. In carefully selected cases there seems to be distinct relaxation and even a general improvement in the emotional condition of people who have benefited by this induced sleep.

Electrosleep is being studied carefully all over the United States in order to insure the absolute safety of the instrument. The Food and Drug Administration adds to its overall protection of the American people with a critical eye on all new medical instruments. When they give their final sanction, all experimental studies will have proved that the electrosleep machine accomplishes its purpose with no dangerous side effects.

In Russia there are more than 250 "Sleep Centers" which, for many years, have been using electrosleep for a large variety of conditions other than insomnia. Their published reports are calling forth great enthusiasm. When confirmed it may be the beginning of similar projects in the United States.

The Cleveland Clinic, one of the nation's great hospitals, is using the helicopter as a means of bringing emergency medical supplies, blood and serum and patients by landing them on the roof of the hospital. So successful has this been that other hospitals are following this method to bring emergency personnel quickly and directly to the hospital.

Critically ill patients are given the added advantage of emergency treatment and much valuable time has been saved by this novel use of modern technology.

A new and important test has recently been developed at the Washington University School of Medicine in St. Louis by Dr. Norma Alkjaersig and Dr. Anthony P. Fletcher which may further eradicate the danger of blood clots. This sensitive and reliable test has been tried to uncover a blood clotting tendency in women who have been taking oral contraceptives.

Occasionally a blood clot may be present in a varicose vein in the leg and may not be easily recognized. If this test is finally proven to be accurate, it will be an important contribution in uncovering potential hazards of blood clots. Doctors and surgeons can then be alerted and intensive preventive measures can be applied for greater safety, especially following surgery.

Severe lacerations of the mouth occur frequently in children who run and play while carrying objects in their mouths. The stick of the benign lollipop can be dangerous. These accidents are avoidable.

Shot Down

Over Egypt

WASHINGTON (AP) — A former Columbus, Ohio, resident has been shot down over Egypt in an Israeli air force plane but the State Department says the man may no longer be an American citizen.

The Egyptian government reported earlier this week the capture of an Israeli pilot identified as an American named Isaac Peer.

State Department officials said Thursday Isaac Peer has been identified with Jeffrey Peer, who was born in Columbus in 1943 and lived there until 1957.

According to the State Department Peer was last issued a passport by the embassy at Tel Aviv in May 1960, presumably having gone to Israel three years earlier.

He apparently acquired Israeli citizenship in 1961, the State Department said, changed his first name to Yitzhak and joined the Israeli army the same year.

In July 1963 the embassy at Tel Aviv made what officials called a "preliminary determination" that he lost his American citizenship because of entering the armed forces of a foreign country.

Somewhere in the attic you still have an old mah jongg set, a broken-stringed ukelele, and a ouija board.

Some days you feel like you can keep one of your chins up—but not both of them.

You don't actually sit down in a chair anymore. You just kind of sag into it.

It takes you longer to put your shoes on in the morning, and after you do, you rest for a moment or two brooding whether it's really worthwhile to get up.

The only tune you still remember all the words to is "It's a long way to Tipperary," but after two Martinis you are willing to sing them any old time and any old where.

You vaguely suspect there isn't as much fun in the world as there used to be—but if there is, the wrong people are having it.

For Less Secrecy

Under the House of Representatives' present procedure, the legislative process — from subcommittee, to committee, to the House floor, to House-Senate conference — all too often is carried out in secrecy.

On the committee level, almost all business is conducted behind closed doors, beyond the scrutiny of the public and of most members of Congress. In the House itself, members are not held accountable for their votes on the amendments that so often shape legislation.

And in conference, business again is conducted in secret, and obfuscatory reporting procedures make effective challenge to a conference's conclusions all but impossible.

A sizable bipartisan coalition of House members has now offered a series of antisecrecy amendments to the tenuous congressional reform bill reported out by the House Rules Committee in May. One proposal stipulates that every committee hearing be open unless a majority of members votes otherwise in public session.

Another requires that committee roll-call votes be made public. A third calls for conference committee reports to be printed in the Congressional Record three days before floor action.

The most significant reform is that of eliminating secrecy on the House floor. In considering amendments, the House now organizes itself as a Committee of the whole, an arrangement that conveniently precludes on-the-record voting.

Questions then are resolved through standing or voice votes or through a teller vote, in which members file down the House aisle, are counted for or against an issue, but are not identified by name.

Under the new proposals an on-the-record teller vote would be conducted when ever requested by a minimum of 20 members. A congressman's name would be listed as he cast his vote and his position would be made public.

The new arrangement doubtless would alter the voting habits of representatives who, behind the shield of secrecy, have subordinated the concerns of the electorate to those of special interest groups. It also could produce a marked improvement in the House's attendance record, which, usually runs about 30 per cent from non-record votes.

And, not incidentally, it would do much to enhance the House's standing as a responsive and responsible body.

NEW YORK (AP) — A highly successful investor in about 15 corporations was describing the process of making a sound decision when he was interrupted by a listener.

"Don't you attempt to judge a company's investment merits by reviewing its list of directors?" the listener asked. "Never," the investor snorted. "They don't mean a thing. Maybe I'd look at how many shares they owned because then I'd know something about their commitment. But never just the list of names. They're only win-dow dressing."

To him, boards too often are meaningless. He, at least, has made up his mind, but millions of other investors today are growing more confused about the function and responsibilities of directors.

You can look for a lot more discussion of this touchy subject, especially in Washington, but that doesn't insure any action. Investors have wondered and worried for years and still the matter is cloudy.

The latest reason for reopening the discussion is the Penn Central Transportation debacle, a $2.8 billion enterprise now being reorganized under the bankruptcy laws.

Some directors of that corporation, all highly respected in business circles, revealed they knew little about the precarious financial position of the railroad until, in effect, there was little to do but resign.

Nevertheless, the board of any corporation is theoretically where all the power resides. It can delegate this power and authority to management, but unless the rules have changed, it is accountable to stockholders for that management.

This responsibility has, however, become less clear in many instances.

In some corporations the board's function is little more than ceremonial. Members attend meetings merely to sanction the agenda placed before them by management. Sometimes there isn't time for an intelligent evaluation.

In some companies the boards are made up very heavily of insiders, men and women who already occupy executive jobs with the company and who therefore are hardly objective critics of performance.

Some boards are poorly balanced, either all young or all old, and often without the proper representation of financial authorities—men and women who can understand today's incredibly complex financial statements.

Meanwhile, the responsibilities of board members would appear to be growing rather than diminishing. It is they, for example, who supposedly must shape the response to demands for a new social commitment by business.

Cities In Ohio Show Big Boost In Indebtedness
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The mounting debt of many of Ohio's 203 cities reflects increasing demands for public service and capital improvements, linked with inflationary prices, State Auditor Roger Cloud said Thursday.

Cloud noted the 1968 report on city governments—the last for which complete figures are available—showing an outstanding debt of $1.6 billion at the close of that year. This was an increase of $125.7 million or 8.4 per cent over 1967.

Cloud's records showed the eight metropolitan cities in the state accounted for a total indebtedness of $939.6 million, 58.1 per cent of the statewide debt of all cities. This was an increase of $59.6 million for the eight cities over 1967.

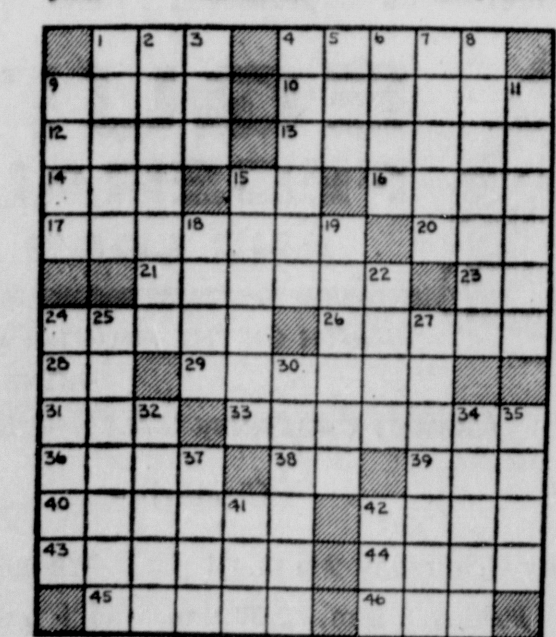

The auditor also noted that debt service requirements for interest and retirement of principal for 1968 were 9.2 per cent of the general expenditures of $1.4 billion.

NEAR the end of World War II, food conservationists plastered placards all through army installations reminding wasteful GIs, "Food Will Win the War." Underneath one of the placards a mischievous private penciled, "Agreed—but how can we get the Japs over here to eat it?"

Golf tournaments are elegant affairs these days, with big corporations putting up thousands of dollars in prize money, and contestants dressed in dazzling garb which they're paid large sums to wear by publicly-seeking manufacturers. It wasn't too long ago, however, when touring pros were happy to play for a small fraction of the fees they command today and often depended upon side bets they made with one another for a principal source of revenue. Dan Jenkins, in his "The Dogged Victims of Inexorable Fate," a book which will delight all golf addicts, tells of one tournament in the 1930's that came down to the eighteenth green with Bobby Cruikshank leading Wild Bill Melhorn by a single stroke. Melhorn's only chance to tie was for Cruikshank to take three putts on that last green. He accordingly climbed a live oak bordering the green in the hope of making enough noise to distract Cruikshank. Unfortunately for Melhorn, Cruikshank not only sank his long putt for a birdie, but Mr. Melhorn fell out of the tree, without a backspin, and landed on the straw-bonneted and outraged official scorer of the tournament.

Speaking Of Your Health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

A small electronic machine has been widely used in Russia to induce sleep in people with marked insomnia. The device is powered with a battery that sends a slight current, painlessly and safely to the brain to help relaxation and sleep.

Dr. Milton Kline, head of the Research Division of the Morton Prince Center for Hypnotherapy in New York City has been using the Electrosonic instrument for electrosleep in some highly anxious patients. In carefully selected cases there seems to be distinct relaxation and even a general improvement in the emotional condition of people who have benefited by this induced sleep.

Electrosleep is being studied carefully all over the United States in order to insure the absolute safety of the instrument. The Food and Drug Administration adds to its overall protection of the American people with a critical eye on all new medical instruments. When they give their final sanction, all experimental studies will have proved that the electrosleep machine accomplishes its purpose with no dangerous side effects.

In Russia there are more than 250 "Sleep Centers" which, for many years, have been using electrosleep for a large variety of conditions other than insomnia. Their published reports are calling forth great enthusiasm. When confirmed it may be the beginning of similar projects in the United States.

According To Boyle

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — No matter what your birth certificate says, you are middle aged if—
Your doctor calls you by your first name.

Everybody within hearing distance sighs when you start to tell a story.

It is your considered opinion that no hotel room in the world is worth more than $5 a night. You still kind of miss not seeing Robert Benchley on screen or in print.

Somewhere in the attic you still have an old mah jongg set, a broken-stringed ukelele, and a ouija board.

Some days you feel like you can keep one of your chins up—but not both of them.

You don't actually sit down in a chair anymore. You just kind of sag into it.

It takes you longer to put your shoes on in the morning, and after you do, you rest for a moment or two brooding whether it's really worthwhile to get up.

The only tune you still remember all the words to is "It's a long way to Tipperary," but after two Martinis you are willing to sing them any old time and any old where.

You vaguely suspect there isn't as much fun in the world as there used to be—but if there is, the wrong people are having it.

The dentist warns you that if you don't let him do something about them this year, next year may be too late. You conclude that from now on your life will be full of more dentures than adventures.

That second cup of coffee makes you feel a little bilious.

Half the girls in the office stay home on your birthdays so they won't have to give you a kiss; those who do come in only peck you on the cheek.

No matter how you comb it the bald spot shows.

It seems to you that in the old days newspapers had more interesting stories on the front page—and not just all this crime and disaster stuff.

It begins to dawn on you that you probably won't become head of the firm unless a miracle happens—and you're not too sure you want the miracle to happen. Responsibility can age a man quicker than anything.

You can still do practically anything you ever did, but half the things you used to do no longer seem worth doing.

All this blather about the youth revolt annoys you. If youth knows what it wants, why doesn't it get it, and if it doesn't know, then why doesn't it shut up?

Each day seems a little longer, each year a bit shorter.

Ford Earnings Show Decline

DETROIT (AP) — Despite record sales, Ford Motor Co. earnings were down in the second quarter of this year, the nation's No. 2 automaker reported Thursday.

Henry Ford II, board chairman of the firm, reported sales of $3.91 billion in the three-month period ended June 30, up from the previous record of $3.89 billion set in the second quarter of last year.

Earnings, however, totaled $166 million, or $1.54 a share, in the second quarter, down from $180 million, or $1.66 a share, in the corresponding period of 1969.

Custodians Close Schools, Playgrounds

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (AP)—A protest by custodians over a new delivery policy caused a summer school sessions at three school buildings and 13 playground programs to be closed Thursday.

Some 100 members of Youngstown Public School Employees Local 1143 said they would continue the protest until the dispute is solved. George Phillips, president of the local, said workers were upset over the suspension of a man for refusing to accept a shipment of books from a truck driver.

Teamster Heads, Contractor Indicted On Federal Counts

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — welfare fund to elicit private business.

Nicholas P. Francis, 45, president of Cleveland Teamsters Local 416, was indicted on six counts including two of embezzling more than $14,000 and four of making false annual reports to the U.S. Department of Labor.

Joseph T. (Joe Blue) Blumetti, 56, business representative of Youngstown Teamsters Local 410, Vending Machine Service Employees, was indicted on charges of embezzling $2,217 and of falsifying records.

Presser and Franks were indicted on one count of conspiracy and 23 counts of violating the Taft-Hartley Act, which prohibits acceptance of payments from employers by a labor organization.

The indictment said Presser and Franks had conspired since 1963 to solicit money from employers in Ohio by telling the employers they were buying advertising in the Ohio Teamsters Journal.

House Passes Insurance Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House has passed and sent to the Senate a compromise bill that would bring about 4.5 million workers under unemployment insurance laws.

It would also bring more benefits during times of high unemployment.

The bill, passed 388 to 3, originally contained a provision to extend unemployment benefits to 276,000 workers on large farms, but this portion was eliminated on a vote of 219 to 170.

Discounting published reports that an FBI investigation had concluded the shootings were unnecessary, the American Independent Party candidate for governor told Carroll County fairgoers the troops "faced a mob of unpredictable human animals."

Even at night, the Stars and Stripes flies over the Senate or House wings of the Capitol when the lawmakers are in session.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon Friday announced plans to withdraw more than 6,000 U.S. military personnel

The withdrawal, affecting mostly Air Force, Navy and Marine personnel, will reduce the U.S. presence in the Philip-the present total of more than that an FBI investigation had concluded the shootings were unnecessary, the American In-

12th-Hour Decision Saves College All-Star Clash

NFL Players Okay Contest For KC Chiefs

By JOE MOOSHL
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — The game is on next Friday night with the College All-Stars tugging with the Kansas City Chiefs, champions of all professional football.

The National Football League Players' Association, still deadlocked in a dispute with the owners, gave the Chiefs permission to report to training camp Saturday and begin drills for the midsummer classic in Soldier Field.

It was a twelfth hour decision and saved the charity classic with the NFLPA stating that it never intended to jeopardize the All-Star game, a kickoff to the exhibition season.

Kansas City Coach Hank Stram had said earlier that his team could play in the game if it could begin organized practices by Saturday.

The decision by the Players' Association took the Chiefs off the hook. Earlier in the week the Chiefs voted against defying the Players' Association and would not go into formal training sessions for the game.

The players and owners are locked in negotiations over the pension fund and both groups are meeting in Philadelphia along with federal mediation officials.

The issue, involving some $11 million, has ripped the groups asunder and originally threatened the All-Star game and the entire exhibition schedule.

"We've been given permission to go with the game," said George Strickler, executive director of the Chicago Tribune Charities which is the sponsor for the All-Star game.

"From then on, it's anyone's problem," said Strickler. "My understanding is that if an agreement is not reached after the All-Star game, the strike will remain in effect."

"We're happy with the outcome. We've gone along with the assumption the game will be played. Our team will be ready."

The All-Stars, who have been working at Northwestern University in suburban Evanston, have missed only one day of practice.

That came last week when they took off one day to indicate their backing of the Players' Association's stand against the owners. But they went back to work the following day under the tutelage of head Coach Otto Graham.

"We've kept our scrimmages down," said Graham, "only to limit our injuries. We've been running this but we'll be ready for the pros."

The Chiefs, who qualified for the game by whipping Minnesota, 23-7, in the Super Bowl, figure to regroup at their Liberty, Mo., camp Saturday and begin training sessions for the All-Star game.

Veteran players, heretofore locked out of the camp, had been working on their own the past week in separate drills.

Stoutsville Wins On 3-Run Homer

Mike Cassill's three run homer in the seventh inning gave Stoutsville a 12-9 victory over Saltcreek in Tri County action.

Saltcreek was sporting a 9-7 lead going into the sixth frame when Stoutsville rallied for two runs in the inning, setting the stage for Cassill's blast in the seventh.

Cloyce Hartley and Rick Brown shared the win allowing six hits, six walks and struckout nine.

Reichelderfer and Faulk were on the mound for Saltcreek. They gave up six hits, 10 walks and fanned nine.

Willie Crites had two safeties for Stoutsville while Pat Tatman and Moore had two hits apiece for Saltcreek. Tom Behmer added a double to the Stoutsville attack.

Barnhill's Tops Hummel and Plum

Barnhill's topped Hummel and Plum, 14-2, in the only Mosquito League play Friday night.

Don Hill took the victory on the mound allowing six hits. His counterpart, Dwight Imbler, tossed a 12 hitter for the Hummel and Plum group.

Chisox Split With Tigers Despite Melton

By MIKE RECHT
Associated Press Sports Writer

It just wasn't Bill Melton's night.

While his Chicago White Sox teammates came close to their best night of the season Friday, he didn't come close to much of anything.

The slugging outfielder, who started the day hitting .227 with 18 homers, tied a major league record by striking out seven times in a twilight doubleheader against Detroit.

He did walk once. And on his last time at bat, he finally managed to hit the ball — but he hit it with his left arm and wound up in the hospital.

In spite of him, the White Sox rallied for five runs in the ninth inning to beat the Tigers 5-2 in the first game, and with him gone in the ninth of the nightcap, they almost pulled that one out in the ninth before losing 5-4.

As a result, they missed another chance to win a doubleheader for the first time this season. They have lost nine twinbills and now have split three.

The Tigers also missed a big chance to pick up ground on the Baltimore Orioles, who were routed by the Minnesota Twins 8-0 in a battle between division leaders in the American League.

Washington outlasted California 9-8 in 10 innings, Oakland bombed the New York Yankees 11-0, Milwaukee overcame Boston 8-4 and Cleveland mauled Kansas City 9-2 after losing 5-3 in another twinheader in other games.

The victory enabled the Tigers to pick up only a half game on Baltimore, which now leads the East by 5 1/2 games.

Minnesota, meanwhile, increased its West lead to six games over California as Tony Oliva, Harmon Killebrew and Rick Renick slammed homers behind Jim Kaat's seven-hit pitching. Oliva's came with two on in the fifth inning and drove out Mike Cuellar, 13-6.

Mike Epstein's 11th homer with one out in the 10th leveled California, which blew a five-run first-inning lead. The Senators, held hitless by Andy Messersmith for 5 1/3 innings, broke loose for eight runs in the sixth, the first two on Frank Howard's 26th homer.

Stock Race Mishap Kills 3 Crewmen

DARLINGTON, Wis. (AP) — Three pit crewmen at a county fair stock car race died Friday night and four more were injured when a racer collided with another car, skidded backward into the pits and overturned a wrecking truck.

Sheriff Ken Pratt said two of the dead victims were pinned under the overturned wrecker. All three were from the Rockford, Ill. area.

Pratt estimated the car, a late-model Chevle, was traveling 90 miles an hour in the back straightaway on the half-mile dirt oval at the Lafayette County Fair when it collided with another car.

It skidded into the wrecker and bounced away, but was checked by cables and steel fencing before it could reach spectator areas. About 4,000 persons were watching the race.

The dead were identified as Robert W. Henn, 15; James R. Hardman, 30, and Laverne L. Meyers, 17.

Two pit workers were hospitalized, neither in critical condition. They are Ray Burkhalter, 23, of Rockford and William Cullen 35, of Darlington.

Two other pit members were treated for injuries at the hospital two blocks from the fairgrounds. Neither driver was injured seriously.

Officials said the race, being held on the second night of the 114th annual fair, had drawn an unexpectedly large number of competitors.

Pratt said there were about 40 entries in the race, and that there were at least 10 authorized persons in the pit area when the accident occurred.

Kiwanis Win BR Contest, 5-1

Dave Webb tossed a three hitter to lead the Kiwanis group to victory over the Lindsey's Bakery bunch, 5-1, in a Babe Ruth league fray Friday night.

Webb walked two batters and whiffed five in the game.

His counterpart, Tom England, allowed four hits and 12 walks while striking out nine would be hitters.

Don Valentine hit a double for the winners while Bill Halstenberg and Hawks picked up singles.

Don Mincher, Frank Fernandez and Chuck Dobson each drove in two runs in a seven-run first inning and Dobson, 10-10, breezed in with a four-hitter for Oakland.

Drugmen, Elks Win In Major Loop Battles

Bingman's blasted American Legion, 14-7, and the Elks dumped Purina, 8-2, in the Little League Major race Friday night.

Bill Mogan and Jeff Funk tossed the win for the Druggists giving up two hits and eight bases on balls while fanning nine batters.

Dan Marshall and John Fuller tossed to the Drugmen. They allowed ten hits and two bases on balls with eight strikeouts.

Hoop and Funk banded doubles for the winners.

In the Elks tilt, the winners took the Purina "9" with eight men and a six run fifth stanza.

Gary Wolford notched five strike outs while giving up two bases on balls and being touched for six hits. Sam Webb took the loss allowing six hits and four walks and fanning two. Randy Cradlebaugh tagged a double for the winners.

Steamin' Missile Wins Scioto Trot

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Steamin' Missile toured the mile in 2:03.25 to win the featured $6,000 invitational trot by one and a quarter lengths Friday night at Scioto Downs.

Steamin' Missile paid $6.40, $4.20 and $3.40 while Gay Saint Pat was worth $5.40 and $3.80. Show horse Lynn Lee returned $4.

The 5-3 daily double paid $58.40 while the 1-3 quinella returned $23.10.

A crowd of 7,181 wagered $339,329.

First Bankers Upset Blue Ribbon, 13-4

First National Bank beat Blue Ribbon, the frontrunners in the Little League Minor race, 13-4, to keep a tight rein on the second spot in the loop.

Blue Ribbon is 8-2 for the season with both losses credited to the First Bankers. The second place squad is 8-3 for the year.

In other Minor league action Friday night, the Savings Bank blasted Rotary, 22-9, for their sixth victory in 11 starts.

Joe Mogan tallied four for five at the plate for the winners and tossed the winning game on the mound.

MOGAN fanned seven and gave up ten hits and four bases on balls.

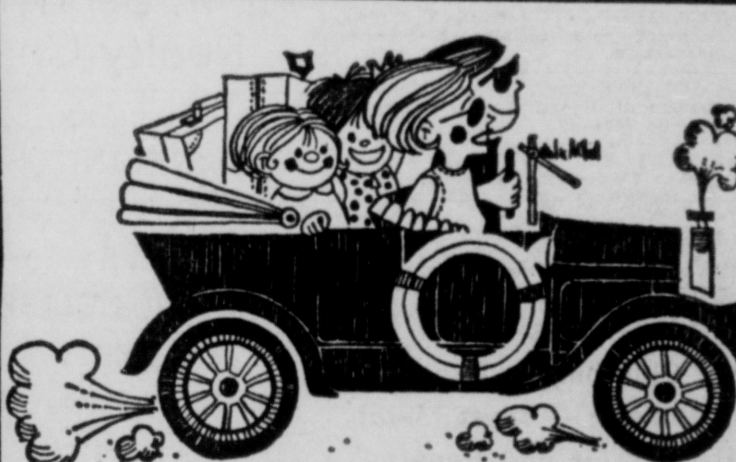

Butch McFarland took the loss for the Dairymen allowing 12 hits and nine walks while whiffing five.

Larry Bond and Tom Hill tallied triples and Kevin Roan tagged a double as the Savings Bank dumped Rotary in a three inning bout.

Mike McKelvey and McCain touched doubles for the Rotary effort.

Dave Cherrington and McKelvey hurled three strikeouts, nine walks and three touched for 15 hits.

Hill and Tom Scherer were credited with the win on the rubber. They whiffed nine would be hitters, walked seven and gave up four hits.

KC-All Star Game Approval Seen As Sign Of Agreement

By RALPH BERNSTEIN

Associated Press Sports Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Is there a chink in the armor of the National Football League Players Association in its all out battle with team owners over a new contract?

The Association made a beautiful reversal of field Friday night in announcing it would permit the Kansas City Chiefs to start drills for next Friday's All-Star game in Chicago.

The change of heart from Thursday's denial of permission for the Chiefs to meet the College All-Stars was surrounded by a beautiful hearts and flowers statement.

"The Kansas City players," read the NFLPA announcement, "believe strongly that this is not a situation that should be used as a lever for the owners or players, but as a sincere effort on the part of the NFLPA, the NFL owners and the Kansas City Chiefs to keep tradition and pride in its proper perspective."

The Association said that at no time did it intend to jeopardize the All-Star game. It explained that the players didn't answer the owners affirmatively earlier because Kansas City coach Hank Stram said publicly that his Super Bowl champions could play the game if it began organized practices by Saturday, and that the players felt strongly that the dispute would be settled by Saturday.

The dispute hasn't been settled, not after seven hours of talks Friday between the Association and the owners committee under the guidance of federal mediators. They were back at the bargaining table today at 10 a.m.

The Association negotiators are led by president John Mackey of the Baltimore Colts. He is flanked by Ernie Wright of the Cincinnati Bengals and Ken Bowman of Green Bay. Tex Schramm, president of the Dallas Cowboys and Ralph Wilson, owner of the Buffalo Bills, represented the owners.

Bumgarner Hurls Ashville Victory

A single with two out in the sixth inning ruined Ron Bumgarner's bid for a no hitter as he hurled the Ashville Poodle Parlor nine to a 3-0 win over Bickerf Hauling in a Teays Valley Little League contest Friday.

Steve Williams laced a single to spoil the bid for a masterpiece as Bumgarner walked two and whiffed nine.

Rusty Rathburn handled the mound chores for the haulers and scattered seven hits in the losing effort.

Paul Welsh, Danny Stewart and Bumgarner had two hits apiece and Steve Cook added a single to complete the Ashville attack.

Ashville record stands at 7-3.

12th-Hour Decision Saves College All-Star Clash

NFL Players Okay Contest For KC Chiefs

By JOE MOOSHIL
Associated Press Sports Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — The game is on next Friday night with the College All-Stars tangling with the Kansas City Chiefs, champions of all professional football.

The National Football League Players' Association, still deadlocked in a dispute with the owners, gave the Chiefs permission to report to training camp Saturday and begin drills for the midsummer classic in Soldier Field.

It was a twelfth hour decision and saved the charity classic with the NFLPA stating that it never intended to jeopardize the All-Star game, a kickoff to the exhibition season.

Kansas City Coach Hank Stram had said earlier that his team could play in the game if it could begin organized practices by Saturday.

The decision by the Players' Association took the Chiefs off the hook. Earlier in the week the Chiefs voted against defying the Players' Association and would not go into formal training sessions for the game.

The players and owners are locked in negotiations over the pension fund and both groups are meeting in Philadelphia along with federal mediation officials.

The issue, involving some $11 million, has ripped the groups asunder and originally threatened the All-Star game and the entire exhibition schedule.

"We've been given permission to go with the game," said George Strickler, executive director of the Chicago Tribune Charities which is the sponsor for the All-Star game.

"From then on, it's anyone's problem," said Strickler. "My understanding is that if an agreement is not reached after the All-Star game, the strike will remain in effect."

"We're happy with the outcome. We've gone along with the assumption the game will be played. Our team will be ready."

The All-Stars, who have been working at Northwestern University in suburban Evanston, have missed only one day of practice.

That came last week when they took off one day to indicate their backing of the Players' Association's stand against the owners. But they went back to work the following day under the tutelage of head Coach Otto Graham.

"We've kept our scrimmages down," said Graham, "only to limit our injuries. We've been running but we'll be ready for the pros."

The Chiefs, who qualified for the game by whipping Minnesota, 23-7, in the Super Bowl, figure to regroup at their Liberty, Mo., camp Saturday and begin training sessions for the All-Star game.

Veteran players, heretofore locked out of the camp, had been working on their own the past week in separate drills.

Stoutsville Wins On 3-Run Homer

Mike Cassill' three run homer in the seventh inning gave Stoutsville a 12-9 victory over Saltcreek in Tri County action.

Saltcreek was sporting a 9-7 lead going into the sixth frame when Stoutsville rallied for two runs in the inning, setting the stage for Cassill's blast in the seventh.

Cloyce Hartley and Rick Brown shared the win allowing six hits, six walks and struck out nine.

Reichelderfer and Faulk were on the mound for Saltcreek. They gave up six hits, 10 walks and fanned nine.

Willie Crites had two safeties for Stoutsville while Pat Tatman and Moore had two hits apiece for Saltcreek. Tom Behmer added a double to the Stoutsville attack.

Barnhill's Tops Hummel And Plum

Barnhill's topped Hummel and Plum, 14-2, in the only Mosquito League play Friday night.

Don Hill took the victory on the mound allowing six hits. His counterpart, Dewight Imier, tossed a 12 hitter for the Hummel and Plum group.

Brian Sealock banged a triple and two singles while Richard Elsea tallied two two-basers and three singles. Hill and Gary Ramey hit two singles.

For the Insurance men, Ricky Barker hit a double and a single while Ray Cardenas hit a two-baser and a single.

Chisox Split With Tigers Despite Melton

By MIKE RECHT
Associated Press Sports Writer
It just wasn't Bill Melton's night.

While his Chicago White Sox teammates came close to their best night of the season Friday, he didn't come close to much of anything.

The slugging outfielder, who started the day hitting .227 with 18 homers, tied a major league record by striking out seven times in a twinight doubleheader against Detroit.

He did walk once. And on his last time at bat, he finally managed to hit the ball — but he hit it with his left arm and wound up in the hospital.

In spite of him, the White Sox started the day hitting .227 in the ninth inning to beat the Tigers 5-2 in the first game, and with him gone in the ninth of the nightcap, they almost pulled that one out in the ninth before losing 3-4.

As a result, they missed another chance to win a doubleheader for the first time this season. They have lost nine twinights and now have split three.

The Tigers also missed a big chance to pick up ground on the Baltimore Orioles, who were routed by the Minnesota Twins 8-0 in a battle between division leaders in the American League.

Washington outlasted California 9-8 in 10 innings, Oakland bombed the New York Yankees 11-0, Milwaukee overcame Boston 8-4 and Cleveland mauled Kansas City 9-2 after losing 5-3 in another twinight in other games.

The victory enabled the Tigers to pick up only a half game on Baltimore, which now leads the East by 5 1/2 games.

Minnesota, meanwhile, increased its West lead to six games over California as Tony Oliva, Harmon Killebrew and Rick Renick slammed homers behind Jim Kaat's seven-hit pitching. Oliva's came with two on in the fifth inning and drove out Mike Cuellar, 13-6.

Mike Epstein's 11th homer with one out in the 10th leveled California, which blew a five-run first-inning lead. The Senators, held hitless by Andy Messersmith for 5 1-3 innings, broke loose for eight runs in the sixth, the first two on Frank Howard's 26th homer.

Don Mincher, Frank Fernandez and Chuck Dobson each drove in two runs in a seven-run first inning and Dobson, 10-10, breezed in with a four-hitter for Oakland.

Drugmen, Elks Win In Major Loop Battles

Bingman's blasted American Legion, 14-7, and the Elks dumped Purina, 8-2, in the Little League Major race Friday night.

Bill Mogan and Jeff Funk tossed the win for the Drugists giving up two hits and eight bases on balls while fanning nine batters.

Dan Marshall and John Fuller tossed to the Drugmen. They allowed ten hits and two bases on balls with eight strikeouts.

Hoop and Funk banged doubles for the winners.

In the Elks tilt, the winners took the Purina "9" with eight men and a six run fifth stanza.

Gary Wolford notched five strike outs while giving up two bases on balls and being touched for six hits. Sam Webb took the loss allowing six hits and four walks and fanning two.

Randy Cradlebaugh tagged a double for the winners.

Steamin' Missile Wins Scioto Trot

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Steam Missile topped the mile in 2:03 2-5 to win the featured $6,000 invitational trot by one and a quarter lengths Friday night at Scioto Downs.

Steam Missile paid $6.40, $4.20 and $3.40 while Gay Saint Pat was worth $5.40 and $3.80. Show horse Lynn Lee returned $4.

The 5-3 daily double paid $58.40 while the 1-3 quinella returned $23.10.

A crowd of 7,181 wagered $339,329.

Kiwanis Win BR Contest, 5-1

Dave Webb tossed a three hitter to lead the Kiwanis group to victory over the Lindsey's Bakery bunch, 5-1, in a Babe Ruth league fray Friday night.

Webb walked two batters and whiffed five in the game.

His counterpart, Tom England, allowed four hits and 12 walks while striking out nine would be hitters.

Don Valentine hit a double for the winners while Bill Halstenberg and Hawks picked up singles.

Reds Blank Cards, 4-0

Nolan Masters Shut Out In Marking 13-4 Record

CINCINNATI (AP) — Gary Nolan had the Cincinnati Reds excited at this point last year and he has them talking again now.

"For the past month, Nolan definitely has been our best pitcher," Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson said. "A majority of the times he's been able to get the kind of pitch he wanted over."

The young righthander had just chalked up his sixth straight victory and helped the Reds shut out the St. Louis Cardinals 4-0 Friday night. He struck out seven and upped his record to 13-4 while checking the Cardinals on six hits before being relieved by Wayne Granger in the eighth inning.

"Nolan's back in the groove," record to 13-4 while checking said pitching coach Larry Shepard. "He has been pitching the way we've known he could all along."

Last year at this time, the Reds were excited because Nolan was pitching well with their Indianapolis farm club team and was about ready to return to the parent team. He had won only one game and lost three before suffering arm trouble and being shipped to Indianapolis.

"My control has been a little bit sharper," said Nolan who has maintained that regaining his control has played a big part toward his performance this season.

Although he did not get to complete the game Friday night he did not seem too disturbed.

"It's not whether I pitch a full game but whether the Reds win. 'Theres' no getting around it. We've got fantastic relief pitchers."

Nolan said he was referring to Granger, and Clay Carroll and Don Gullett.

Granger, who picked up his 22nd save of the year, helped the Reds out of a slight jam in the eighth by forcing Joe Hague to hit into a double play to end the inning.

The Reds carried a four-run lead into the inning. John Bench lashed his 29th homer in the fourth inning to put the Reds up 2-0 and Bernie Carbo rapped his 15th homer in the seventh inning.

St. Louis Manager Red Schoendienst said that "you simply cannot afford to make mistakes against a bunch of good hitters like the Reds. They'll either hit it out of the park on you or kill you with singles or short hits."

The loss was the Cardinals' sixth straight and 15th in their last 17 games.

"With us, we're just not putting things together," Schoendienst said. "When we're hitting we're not getting the pitching. When our pitchers are doing well, we're not getting the hitting."

"When you are losing, everything goes bad. You simply have to try everything you can to break out of it."

The Cardinals get another crack at the Reds today in the second game of a four-game series.

Bumgarner Hurls Ashville Victory

A single with two out in the sixth inning ruined Ron Bumgarner's bid for a no hitter as he hurled the Asheville Poodle Parlor nine to a 3-0 win over Bickley Hauling in a Teays Valley Little League contest Friday.

Steve Williams laced a single to spoil the bid for a masterpiece as Bumgarner walked two and whiffed nine.

Rusty Rathburn handled the mound chores for the haulers and scattered seven hits in the losing effort.

Paul Welsh, Danny Stewart and Bumgarner had two hits apiece and Steve Cook added a single to complete the Asheville attack.

Ashville record stands at 7-3.

KC-All Star Game Approval Seen As Sign Of Agreement

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
Associated Press Sports Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Is there a chink in the armor of the National Football League Players Association in its all out battle with team owners over a new contract?

The Association made a beautiful reversal of field Friday night in announcing it would permit the Kansas City Chiefs to start drills for next Friday's All-Star game in Chicago.

The change of heart from Thursday's denial of permission for the Chiefs to meet the College All-Stars was surrounded by a beautiful hearts and flowers statement.

"The Kansas City players," read the NFLPA announcement, "believe strongly that this is not a situation that should be used as a lever for the owners or players, but as a sincere effort on the part of the NFLPA, the NFL owners and the Kansas City Chiefs to keep tradition and pride in its proper perspective."

The Association said that at no time did it intend to jeopardize the All-Star game. It explained that the players didn't answer the owners affirmatively earlier because Kansas City coach Hank Stram said publicly that his Super Bowl champions could play the game if it began organized practices by Saturday, and that the players felt strongly that the dispute would be settled by Saturday.

The dispute hasn't been settled, not after seven hours of talks Friday between the Association and the owners committee under the guidance of federal mediators. They were back

Agee Snatches 2-1 Win For Mets

By TOM SALADINO
Associated Press Sports Writer
Tommy Agee was sure his daring surprise would work but he couldn't keep his lips entirely sealed as he deftly stole a victory for the New York Mets.

fielder, stole home in the 10th inning against the Los Angeles Dodgers Friday night, giving the New Yorkers a 2-1 victory.

With reliever Jim Brewer on the mound for the Dodgers with two outs and the bases loaded and Cleon Jones at bat with a 1-1 count, Agee went and when he got near home yelled to Jones,
"Look out, look out."

Agee barreled across the plate, knocking over Los Angeles catcher Bill Haller and the home plate umpire as Jones faked swinging at the 1-1 pitch.

Agee called to Jones because in a similar steal attempt in last year's playoff against Atlanta,

Jones didn't see him and drilled a line drive which just missed the startled Agee.

In other National League games, Chicago ripped Atlanta

11-1, Cincinnati blanked St.
Louis 4-0, Pittsburgh bombed
Houston 11-0, San Francisco split a twin-night doubleheader with Montreal, winning the opener 8-7 before losing 7-5 and Philadelphia edged San Diego 4-3.

In the American League, Kansas City and Cleveland split, the Royals winning 5-2 before dropping a 9-6 decision, Detroit and Chicago split, the White Sox winning 5-2 and the Tigers 5-4,
Milwaukee trounced Boston 8-4,
Minnesota bombed Baltimore 8-

Four Even In Four-Ball Second Round

By D. BYRON YAKE
Associated Press Sports Writer
LIGNONIER, Pa. (AP) — What the big boys did in the first round of the National Four-Ball Championship, the aging duo of Sam Snead and Gardner Dickinson duplicated in the second round.

Both rounds were superb.

Arnold Palmer and Jack
Nicklaus tore up the par-71 Laurel Valley golf course with a 10-under 61 Thursday. The 58-year-old Snead and the 42-year-old Dickinson, who has played on the tour only once in the past two months but hasn't changed his Ben Hogan appearance and his chain smoking, paired for a 10-under in the second round
Friday.

Their excellent play gave them a tie for the lead with Palmer and Nicklaus in the 72-hole event with 128 totals, 14-under for 36 holes.

Dickinson and Snead rolled up six consecutive birdies from the sixth through the 11th holes. For the day they had 10 birdies, no bogeyes.

Palmer and Nicklaus, meanwhile, each had putting troubles, bogeyed two holes and birdied six in what Palmer admitted was a team collapse.

Back one stroke at 129, 13-under, were Jim Colbert and Dean Refram and Dave Eichelberger and J.C. Goosie.

Two strokes back were Bruce Crampton and Orville Moody, and Miller Barber and Don January.

The aging Snead, considered one of the all-time golfing greats with nearly 100 career championships, got three birdies and the little Dickinson seven.

"It was pretty enjoyable today," said Snead. "I'm a little disappointed we didn't do five or six shots better yesterday."

"They'll have two more chances to do even better. The final two rounds continue today and Sunday.

Palmer Firm Files Lawsuit

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) —
An $18.7 million suit has been filed in U.S. District Court here by the Arnold Palmer Golf Co. of Cleveland against Fuqua Industries Inc., an Atlanta, Ga.,
based conglomerate.

The suit filed Friday claimed Fuqua broke a contract to sell the golf firm a manufacturing plant in California in return for 25 per cent of Palmer Co. stock.
The suit also contended that
Fuqua was to lend the Palmer
Co. $700,000.

The golf firm said in the suit that it believed the contract was to be effective in March and ended production arrangements with suppliers. The firm, which has professional golfer as its president, has no manufacturing facilities but designs contracts for and sells golf clubs, balls, bags and gloves bearing Palmer's endorsement.

The suit filed Friday claimed Fuqua broke a contract to sell the golf firm a manufacturing plant in California in return for 25 per cent of Palmer Co. stock.

The suit also contended that Fuqua was to lend the Palmer Co. $700,000.

The golf firm said in the suit that it believed the contract was to be effective in March and ended production arrangements with suppliers. The firm, which has professional golfer as its president, has no manufacturing facilities but designs, contracts for and sells golf clubs, balls, bags and gloves bearing Palmer's endorsement.

Major Debate Launched On Arms Cost

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senators critical of Pentagon expenditures have launched their attack on military spending in a battle over America's defense posture that is expected to continue throughout the summer.

The theme of the attack was sounded Friday when Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., declared $10 billion could easily be trimmed from President Nixon's $72 billion Pentagon budget without impairing the nation's defense.

The defenders, led by Armed Services Committee Chairman John Stennis, D-Miss., said any further cuts could imperil the security of the nation.

The debate, expected to continue until Labor Day, came on a $19.2 billion hardware bill, the first of several bills that comprise the total Pentagon budget.

Proxmire said Defense Department funds could be trimmed to $62 billion, perhaps as low as $58 billion and vowed to introduce an amendment to the pending procurement bill to clamp a ceiling on military spending for the next fiscal year.

Proxmire, however, said no firm defense spending ceiling had been established.

Stennis urged quick passage of the military procurement bill for hardware such as the anti-ballistic missile system, offensive missiles, a new long-range bomber, fighter aircraft and tracked vehicles such as tanks.

Keniston spoke at length Friday before the last in a series of Washington hearings by the President's Commission on Campus Unrest.

His testimony contrasted with that of Dr. Edward Teller, nuclear weapons pioneer, who asserted that unabated student protests could weaken national defense and invite a foreign takeover in 20 years.

Teller complained that "indoctrinated" young people "will not take a defense-related job," and threaten to force defense research out of the universities.

Teller, a physics professor at the University of California, advocated use of "armed forces" to prevent students from closing down schools or "converting them into political pressure groups."

But Keniston said lethal weapons were not necessary in controlling student disorder, and pointed to the success of soft-spoken New Haven Police Chief James Ahern, a commission member.

Touching on Teller's testimony, Keniston said it was wrong for universities to be engaged in defense research, except in times of declared war.

David A. Keene, a Wisconsin law student who heads the conservative Young Americans for Freedom, pronounced campus violence the result of "administrative failures, faculty timidity or else indifference to responsibility."

Miwaukee Mayor Henry W. Maier recommended a national "campus referendum" on leading issues as a method for students to express their views strongly but without violence.

Black Members Of Congress Accuse Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three black congressmen have accused the Nixon administration of showing "disrespect for our offices and callous disregard for our views."

Reps. William L. Clay, D-Mo., Augustus F. Hawkins, D-Calif., and Louis Stokes, D-Ohio, said Friday in a letter to President Nixon that his policies have tended to limit the rights of black Americans.

"When nine black members of Congress indicated five months ago our desire and willingness to bring black American concerns to you, we were turned away in a manner which showed disrespect for our offices and callous disregard for our views," the letter said.

"Your course of the past 18 months, in our opinion, is destined to destroy all possibilities of unity and brotherhood," the three charged.

They urged Nixon to make a firm commitment toward attaining racial equality.

Rumania, though smaller than Oregon, has nearly 10 times as many people — almost 20,000,000, National Geographic says.

Nixon Calls For 'Pioneering' Spirit

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — Exactly a year after welcoming America's moon pioneers back to earth, President Nixon said he would like to see at home the sort of pioneering spirit "that doesn't blame adversity on somebody else but tries to do something about it."

Speaking without notes, Nixon made the remark Friday night before a large—if dissent-studded crowd—in Salt Lake City en route here for a 10-day stay at the Western White House.

Earlier in his transcontinental trip Nixon stopped in Fargo, N.D., to confer on rural prob-

Does Nixon Understand Scope Of Campus Turmoil?

WASHINGTON (AP) — The administration has failed to recognize that campus turmoil "must be viewed as a national emergency," according to President Nixon's special adviser on student unrest.

Alexander Heard, Vanderbilt University chancellor, said late Thursday that while Nixon had displayed "a searching interest in what we had to say," he was unsure what the White House would do about it.

At the same time, Heard released publicly—reportedly at Nixon's request—excerpts from three reports he had written the President, one of which charged failure to give the student issue proper urgency.

What young persons believe and how they behave "will inevitably shape decisively future life in the United States—and our domestic tranquility this coming September," the memo said.

Heard and his co-workers in the White House assignment, notably Howard University President James E. Cheek, urged the administration pay greater heed to views of campus elements and racial minorities.

Heard noted to newsmen that he and Cheek had met personally with Nixon on several occasions, and "I judge the mission to have been worthwhile."

One memo suggested "that the President and others undertake to understand the fears of 'repression' among certain groups in our country and to understand the realities underlying those fears."

Heard's recommendations, now completed, were not spelled out in full detail in the material available to newsmen.

But they included, in general terms, that the President "increase his exposure" to campus representatives, that he use the "moral influence of his office" to reduce racial tensions, and that he seek additional funds for student aid.

The complete list of recommendations has been forwarded to the President's Commission on Campus Unrest.

Meanwhile, administration spokesmen said a few of Heard's and Cheek's proposals already have been implemented.

Former Welfare Secretary Robert H. Finch, now a presidential assistant, said Nixon had assigned him special responsibility for White House liaison with higher education.

Another move advocated by Heard and Cheek, said Finch, prompted an immediate boost from $80 million to $100 million in aid to black colleges from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

In a simultaneous development, the Federal Interagency Committee on Education reported late Thursday that of $4 billion in total federal aid to higher education, some 116 black colleges get only $119 million.

Heard's memo which charged neglect of the entire issue of campus unrest was dated June 19. Although Heard took pains in his accompanying statement to explain recent developments, he provided little indication his sentiment had changed.

The memo declared that "We do not believe that our national government really understands that a national crisis confronts us. The condition cannot be conceived as a temporary aberrational outburst by the young, or simply as a 'campus crisis' or a 'student crisis.'"

"...The condition we face must be viewed as a national emergency, to be addressed with the sense of urgency and openness of mind required by national emergencies."

Finch said that Heard "made that point very forcefully, and I think when he left he felt the President did understand."

Heard also wrote that the residual effects of the U.S. move into Cambodia and the campus violence of last May "promise ... to keep issues alive and campuses tense. The elections will further agitate and politicize the campuses."

"The meaning of May," said Heard, was "a big shove leftward. Cambodia provoked and exposed antiwar and societal discontents among large numbers of students of normally moderate and conservative political viewpoints."

Airlines See New Revenues

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's airlines may stand to make nearly $50 million a year more under their recently granted authority to round fares upward to the nearest dollar.

Rounding off ticket prices was approved by the Civil Aeronautics Board to simplify the fare system. The new prices, and an aircraft use tax increase from 5 to 8 per cent, went into effect July 1.

The airlines say the new tax rate will take a $10 million bite out of the additional revenue.

On jet airliners that annual charge is $25 per plane, plus 3½ cents a pound. On piston-engine aircraft the fee is $25 a year, plus 2 cents a pound.

The simplified fares went into effect for a two-month trial period July 1, when the federal tax was raised.

The CAB authorized scheduled airlines to raise existing fares by sufficient penny amounts to provide a new total, including tax, in even dollars.

Most of the airlines have asked the CAB to continue the fare-adjustment authority indefinitely, beyond its Aug. 31 expiration date.

The CAB asked the airlines to estimate the annual revenue increase and also to indicate their anticipated annual payments under the aircraft use tax.

Not all the airlines submitted estimates of the tax, but those that did included United, $2.6 million; Eastern, $1.5 million; American, $1.4 million; Delta, $930,000; Continental, $360,000; Braniff, $338,000; Frontier, $140,000; North Central, $106,000; Piedmont, $100,000; Ozark, $89,000; Alaska, $50,000; Aloha, $20,000.

The largest airline, United, estimated that its 1971 added revenue from the change would total about $11.5 million.

American set its 1971 probable yield at $8.2 million, and estimated the amount for the last half of 1970 at $4 million.

Other revenue estimates, for one-year periods, include: Eastern, $5.2 million; Delta, $5 million; Braniff, $1.8 million; Continental, $1.57 million; Western, $1.56 million; North Central, $1.4 million; Ozark, $1 million; Piedmont, $746,000; Aloha, $368,000; Alaska, $51,100.

"Pins And Needles"

A frequent occurring and most aggravating condition afflicting many adults is a "pins and needles" feeling in the arms, hands or legs. Various nerve and circulatory disorders can cause this problem. Pressure on a nerve is the most frequent cause, and this nerve pressure does not have to be at the point where the abnormal sensation occurs. Because the nerve trunks supplying the extremities originate from the spine, this is the point where trouble begins. Have your doctor or chiropractor examine you. He can find the cause of your trouble, and through scientific chiropractic adjustments correct the cause of your "pins and needles" condition.

'Softer' Approach Urged In Controlling Disorders

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Yale psychology professor has told a White House panel the way to end killings on American campuses is to take "murderous weapons out of the hands of civil authorities."

Dr. Kenneth Keniston, psychology professor at Yale Medical School, acknowledged students themselves initiated the "insane tactic" of violence. "But if we count bloodied heads, they are students' heads," he said.

Keniston spoke at length Friday before the last in a series of Washington hearings by the President's Commission on Campus Unrest.

LAFB Earns Safety Award

The 317th Tactical Airlift Wing at Lockbourne Air Force Base was selected National Safety Council Award of Merit winner for the second consecutive year.

The award is granted for outstanding ground safety achievements. It is judged on four major areas including military disabling injuries, military fatal injuries, civilians disabling injuries and Air Force motor vehicle injuries.

To be eligible for the award the Wing had to achieve at least a 10 per cent average reduction in all accidents over the past two years.

Explaining the 317th TAW's Award, Harold W. French, ground safety officer at Lockbourne said LAFB showed a 21 per cent reduction rate which is "a rare and difficult achievement for any base in the Air Force to attain."

Sleepy Driver Causes Accident

A one-car accident at 4:45 a.m. Saturday on Route 22 near the Williamsport-Crownover Mill Road resulted in a Dayton man being injured and cited for reckless operation.

According to Pickaway County Sheriff's Deputy Charles Dolby, Timothy S. Summers, 22, was eastbound on Route 22 when he fell asleep at the wheel.

His car left the road and tore up 51 feet of fence and posts before coming to rest in the field.

Summers suffered a slight cut on the foot and was referred to the doctor.

Winifred Chapman, the maid who found the bodies at the Tate house appeared near tears as she said Miss Tate was eight months pregnant and was having the maid's room converted into a nursery. She testified that she had washed the front door and master bedroom door earlier on the day of the murders.

Police have said fingerprints of defendants were found on both doors.

William Garretson, 20, of Lancaster, Ohio, the caretaker at the Tate home, testified that he spent the murder night in the guest house but heard only the barking of dogs, which was normal. He told of Parent's brief visit and departure at midnight or a little later.

On Aug. 9, at 10:30 a.m., Garretson said, he was awakened by a barking dog and, "I looked up and there was a policeman pointing a rifle. Then another came, and another one broke down the door and Christopher (a dog) bit him on the leg."

He added: "I asked what was wrong. They told me to shut up, they'd show me . . . I was shown two bodies on the lawn."

Itinerant Held For Threatening President's Life

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Secret Service has arrested a 32-year-old man on charges of threatening the life of President Nixon.

John M. Woolf, an itinerant, was taken into custody Friday without resistance at his house trailer in Stockton, Calif., said Tom Hansen, Secret Service chief in San Francisco.

Hansen said agents found a .22-caliber rifle and four boxes of ammunition in Woolf's trailer home.

He said police at Healdsburg, Calif., received a report July 13 that Woolf had made an oral threat against the President's life.

Nixon Calls For 'Pioneering' Spirit

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — Exactly a year after welcoming America's moon pioneers back to earth, President Nixon said he would like to see at home the sort of pioneering spirit "that doesn't blame adversity on somebody else but tries to do something about it."

Speaking without notes, Nixon made the remark Friday night before a large-if dissent-studded crowd—in Salt Lake City en route here for a 10-day stay at the Western White House.

Earlier in his transcontinental trip Nixon stopped in Fargo, N.D., to confer on rural prob-

Does Nixon Understand Scope Of Campus Turmoil?

WASHINGTON (AP) — The administration has failed to recognize that campus turmoil "must be viewed as a national emergency," according to President Nixon's special adviser on student unrest.

Alexander Heard, Vanderbilt University chancellor, said late Thursday that while Nixon had displayed "a searching interest in what we had to say," he was unsure what the White House would do about it.

At the same time, Heard released publicly—reportedly at Nixon's request—excerpts from three reports he had written the President, one of which charged failure to give the student issue proper urgency.

What young persons believe and how they behave "will inevitably shape decisively future life in the United States—and our domestic tranquility this coming September," the memo said.

Heard and his co-workers in the White House assignment, notably Howard University President James E. Cheek, urged the administration pay greater heed to views of campus elements and racial minorities.

Heard noted to newsmen that he and Cheek had met personally with Nixon on several occasions, and "I judge the occasion to have been worthwhile."

One memo suggested "that the President and others undertake to understand the fears of 'repression' among certain groups in our country and to understand the realities underlying those fears."

Heard's recommendations, now completed, were not spelled out in full detail in the material available to newsmen.

But they included, in general terms, that the President "increase his exposure" to campus representatives, that he use the "moral influence of his office" to reduce racial tensions, and that he seek additional funds for student aid.

The complete list of recommendations has been forwarded to the President's Commission on Campus Unrest.

Meanwhile, administration spokesmen said a few of Heard's and Cheek's proposals already have been implemented.

Former Welfare Secretary Robert H. Finch, now a presidential assistant, said Nixon had assigned him special responsibility for White House liaison with higher education.

Another move advocated by Heard and Cheek, said Finch, prompted an immediate boost from $80 million to $100 million in aid to black colleges from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

In a simultaneous development, the Federal Interagency Committee on Education reported late Thursday that of $4 billion in total federal aid to higher education, some 116 black colleges get only $119 million.

Heard's memo which charged neglect of the entire issue of campus unrest was dated June 19. Although Heard took pains in his accompanying statement to explain recent developments, he provided little indication his sentiment had changed.

The memo declared that "We do not believe that our national government really understands that a national crisis confronts us. The condition cannot be conceived as a temporary aberration outburst by the young, or simply as a 'campus crisis' or a student crisis."

"...The condition we face must be viewed as a national emergency, to be addressed with the sense of urgency and openness of mind required by national emergencies."

Finch said that Heard "made that point very forcefully, and I think when he left he felt the President did understand."

Heard also wrote that the residual effects of the U.S. move into Cambodia and the campus violence of last May "promise ... to keep issues alive and campuses tense. The elections will further agitate and politicize the campuses."

"The meaning of May," said Heard, was "a big shove leftward. Cambodia provoked and exposed antiwar and societal discontents among large numbers of students of normally moderate and conservative political viewpoints."

Airlines See New Revenues

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's airlines may stand to make nearly $50 million a year more under their recently granted authority to round fares upward to the nearest dollar.

Rounding off ticket prices was approved by the Civil Aeronautics Board to simplify the fare system. The new prices, and an aircraft use tax increase from 5 to 8 per cent, went into effect July 1.

The airlines say the new tax rate will take a $10 million bite out of the additional revenue.

On jet airliners that annual charge is $25 per plane, plus 3 1/2 cents a pound. On piston-engine aircraft the fee is $25 a year, plus 2 cents a pound.

The simplified fares went into effect for a two-month trial period July 1, when the federal tax was raised.

The CAB authorized scheduled airlines to raise existing fares by sufficient penny amounts to provide a new total, including tax, in even dollars.

Most of the airlines have asked the CAB to continue the fare-adjustment authority indefinitely, beyond its Aug. 31 expiration date.

The CAB asked the airlines to estimate the annual revenue increase and also to indicate their anticipated annual payments under the aircraft use tax.

Not all the airlines submitted estimates of the tax, but those that did included United, $2.5 million; Eastern, $1.5 million; American, $1.4 million; Delta, $930,000; Continental, $360,000; Braniff, $338,000; Frontier, $140,000; North Central, $106,000; Piedmont, $100,000; Ozark, $89,000; Alaska, $50,000; Aloha, $20,000.

The largest airline, United, estimated that its 1971 added revenue from the change would total about $11.5 million.

American set its 1971 probable yield at $8.2 million, and estimated the amount for the last half of 1970 at $4 million.

Other revenue estimates, for one-year periods, include: Eastern, $5.2 million; Delta, $5 million; Braniff, $1.8 million; Continental, $1.57 million; Western, $1.56 million; North Central, $1.4 million; Ozark, $1 million; Piedmont, $746,000; Aloha, $369,000; Alaska, $51,100.

CONSERVATION — In observance of the 25th Anniversary of the Pickaway Soil and Water Conservation District, the Circleville Area Chamber of Commerce and the Pickaway SWCD are trying to bring an awareness of conservation to the fourth, fifth and sixth grade young people of Circleville and Pickaway County through the use of conservation literature. These materials will be distributed through our county superintendent, Judson Lanman and city superintendent, Fritz Jacobs. The information packets are being prepared by Jean Ankrom (left), Chamber executive secretary, and Olive Neff, SWCD secretary.

"Pins And Needles"

A frequent occurring and most aggravating condition afflicting many adults is a "pins and needles" feeling in the arms, hands or legs. Various nerve and circulatory disorders can cause this problem. Pressure on a nerve is the most frequent cause, and this nerve pressure does not have to be at the point where the abnormal sensation occurs. Because the nerve trunks supplying the extremities originate from the spine, this is the point where trouble begins. Have your doctor or chiropractic examine you. He can find the cause of your trouble, and through scientific chiropractic adjustments correct the cause of your "pins and needles" condition.

Tate home after visiting the caretaker, identified his son's picture and said the boy's hobby was tinkering with stereo sets.

Winifred Chapman, the maid who found the bodies at the Tate house appeared near tears as she said Miss Tate was eight months pregnant and was having the maid's room converted into a nursery. She testified that she had washed the front door and master bedroom door earlier on the day of the murders. Police have said fingerprints of defendants were found on both doors.

William Garretson, 20, of Lancaster, Ohio, the caretaker at the Tate home, testified that he spent the murder night in the guest house but heard only the barking of dogs, which was normal. He told of Parent's brief visit and departure at midnight or a little later.

On Aug. 9, at 10:30 a.m., Garretson said, he was awakened by a barking dog and, "I looked up and there was a policeman pointing a rifle. Then another came, and another one broke down the door and Christopher (a dog) bit him on the leg."
